U. S. WARNS OF ITS RIGHTS AS A WAR NEUTRAL

Edict to Powers From Hull Follows Searching of American Ship.

NATION MAPPING ACTION

Secretary Says Capital Will Adopt 'Necessary Measures' to Protect Nationals.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The United States today notified European belligerents that it reserves all rights as a neutral nation under international law in the European conflict.

The statement of policy was made by Secretary of State Cordell Hull in view of interference with American shipping.

Hull declared that the United States "will adopt such measures as may seem most practical and prudent when those rights are violated by any of the belligerents."

Warns Shippers.

At the same time, Hull took occasion to warn American nationals and American shipping against dangers of travel in European war zones.

He asserted that, while "the United States has not abandoned any of its rights as a neutral under international law," it has for the time being prescribed certain restrictions for its citizens to prevent possible violation of American neutrality.

These restrictions, he said, were those set down in President Roosevelt's proclamation of neutrality last week.

Hull declared that, nevertheless, the United States has not accepted any modification of the principles of international law.

Any such modification, he insisted, must await action by congress.

In a statement, Hull said:

"The principles of international law as regards neutrals and belligerents have been evolved through the centuries.

"While belligerents have frequently departed from these principles on one pretext or another, and have endeavored to justify their action on various grounds, the principles still subsist.

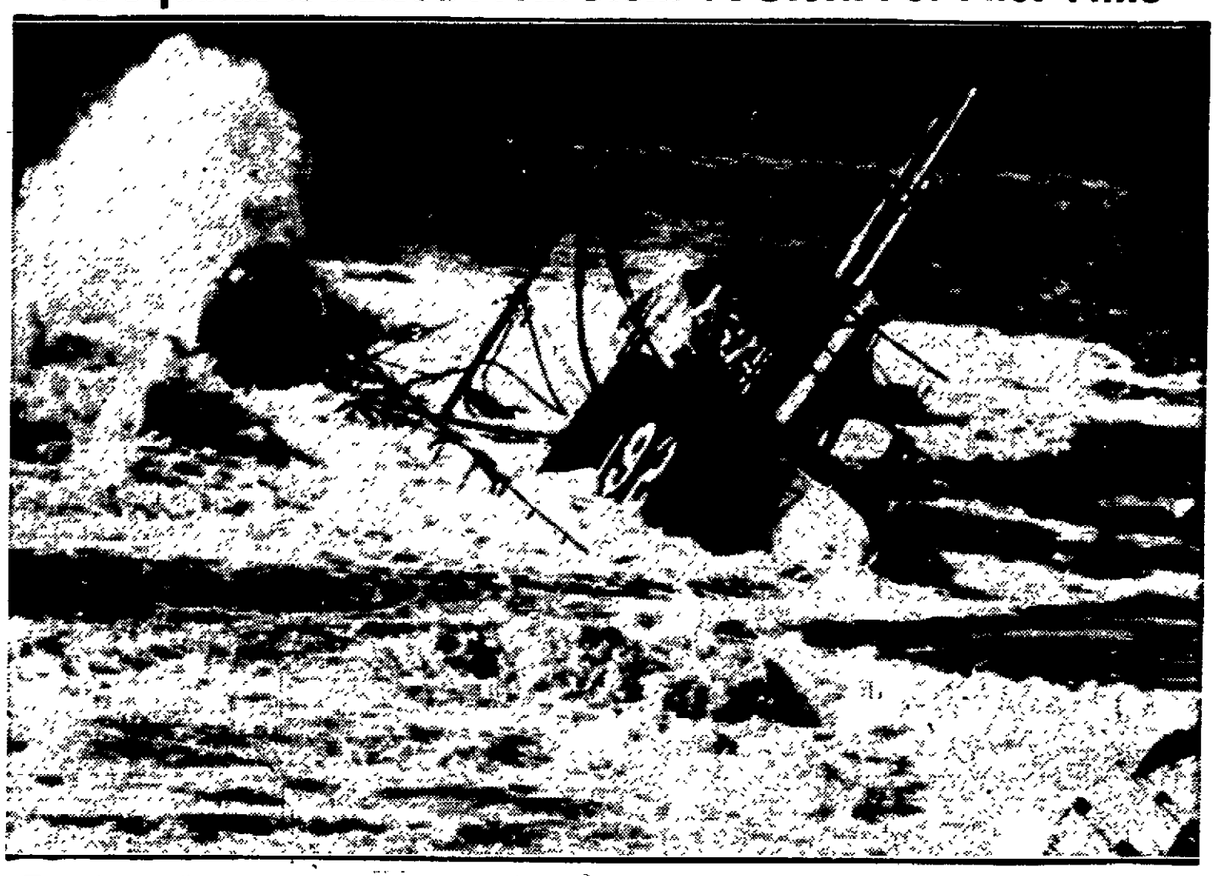
As Squalus Is Raised From Stem To Stern For First Time



The periscope and conning tower of the United States submarine Squalus which foundered off Portsmouth, N. H., breakwater as the submersible is raised, from stern to stern, for the first time since salvage operations were begun. Shortly after, the stern of the craft again sank to the ocean bottom, but shortly afterward was raised again and towed to the navy yard. There are 26 dead in the submarine.

REMOVE BODIES OF SUB'S DEAD

Corps of Undertakers, Naval Crews Open Squalus Today for Burials of 26.

BULLETIN

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.—(U.P.)—Removal of the bodies of the 26 Squalus disaster victims was interrupted today when the stern of the submarine, berthed at a navy yard pier, sank below the surface.

(By United Press)

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.—Naval detachments assisted by a corps of undertakers opened the submarine Squalus today and removed her 26 dead sailors.

The Squalus had reached her home port at last. After 1½3 days on the ocean floor, she was lifted to the surface late yesterday afternoon and last night towed up the Piscataqua river to the Portsmouth navy yard. She grounded at low tide a few feet from pier six. High tide raised her early today and brought her up to her pier.

The 26 men will be given funerals with full military honors.

After the bodies have been removed, the Squalus will be dry-docked. Then, before repairs begin, a naval board of inquiry determining the reasons why she met disaster in a practice dive May 23, will inspect her. She cost $4,300,000 to build and it has been estimated that it will cost $2,000,000 to make her seaworthy again.

The Squalus went down in 240 feet of water. A diving bell, used for the first time in a submarine disaster, removed alive 33 members of the crew. The others were trapped in the water-filled compartments.

Fortunes confiscated from the refugees will be restored, the German consulate was said to promise.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Police kept watch today at an apartment building housing the French consulate after a woman resident reported a telephoned threat to blow up the building.

War Flashes---

Poles Insist They Hold Lodz

PARIS—(INS)—Polish radio reports again insisting that Polish troops had recaptured the important industrial city of Lodz were received in Paris today, despite Germany's claim that the city has been occupied by reich troops. Large quantities of arms, ammunition and other war materials were seized, the Polish radio asserted.

LONDON—(UP)—Great Britain never will resort to deliberate attacks on women, children and other civilians for the purpose of terrorism, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain declared today in the house of commons.

Italian Paper Sees Nazi Victory

ROME—(AP)—The Bologna newspaper Il Resto Del Carlino asserted today that Italy in her present neutrality was pursuing the policy of the Rome-Berlin axis. The newspaper, an important Fascist organ, predicted flatly Germany would win the war.

LONDON — (INS) — Germany has notified Great Britain that she will refrain from use of poison gas and bacteria for the duration of hostilities if her enemies do likewise, it was announced today.

Nazis Shoot Down Dutch Plane

BERLIN—(INS)—German authorities today confirmed that a Dutch seaplane was shot down by German reconnoitering plane outside Dutch territorial waters. Slightly injured, the four Dutchmen aboard were rescued. Because of sun conditions, the Germans were not able to identify the Dutch plane while it was in the air. German authorities have expressed their regrets for the incident.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The United States liner Manhattan today radioed she had turned from her course to rescue the crew of the British tanker "British Influence."

CITY SWELTERS AT 95 IN SHADE

September Continues to Set Heat Records—No Relief Seen for Several Days.

Summer bounced back with a vengeance today, sending the temperature up to 95 at noon in Mansfield to equal the season's record as the blistering sun set new heat marks for September in scores of midwestern cities.

Today's reading of 95 was the highest noon reading of the season and indicated that the mercury probably would approach the 100-degree mark this afternoon.

Lake breezes which helped to keep the temperature down to 91 yesterday deserted Mansfield today as the stifling heat enveloped the city. Today's reading was exactly 58 degrees above the low mark of the summer, 37 degrees above zero, recorded early Monday.

Weather experts said "stagnant air currents" are holding the heat almost stationary in the midwest and there was no hope of relief for several days. The forecast for tonight and Friday was "fair and continued warm."

Van Wert reported 104 yesterday for the highest in the state. Springfield had an unofficial 106 however, while Wilmington reported 102 and Cincinnati 100.

At Cincinnati, several schools were closed shortly after noon, because of the intense heat. Official temperature reading was 97, two degrees above the previous record of 95, recorded on Sept. 14, 1927.

WARSAW UNDER GERMAN FIRE ON ALL SIDES

Poland's Capital Completely Surrounded, Lublin Cut Off From Lwow, Berlin Says.

TROOPS MARCH IN PORT

Polish Seaport Besieged for Two Weeks Finally Gives in to Onrushing Invaders.

BULLETIN

BUDAPEST—(AP)—Heavy autumn rains for which all Poland has been praying in the hope they would hamper Germany's motorized forces were reported to have begun falling in the vicinity of Warsaw during the night. A Warsaw newspaper correspondent wrote that there was much rejoicing in the besieged city.

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—Surrender of the Polish port of Gdynia after a two-weeks' siege was announced today and Germany's eastern army was reported to have made new advances in drives against Warsaw and two other key Polish objectives.

A communique telling of fall of Gdynia, which had been cut off almost since the outbreak of hostilities Sept. 1, said German troops entered the city at 10:15 a. m. (4:15 a. m. EST).

"The Polish commandant surrendered the city," it continued. "North of Gdynia fighting is still going on."

Informed sources said today word was received that the president of the Polish port of Gdynia met Gen. Magnus Eberhardt, commander of German forces besieging the city, at 8:10 a. m. (2:10 a. m. EST) to negotiate surrender.

German troops were reported to have entered the city, ten miles from Danzig, a short time later.

Mayor Gives Up City.

The city president (mayor) was said to have accepted conditions imposed by General Eberhardt—including surrender of 100 hostages, among them the president.

First troops to enter the city, which held out despite encirclement since the early days of Germany's drive into Poland, were

CREW RESCUED

Another British Freighter Sunk by Torpedo.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The crew of the British freighter Vancouver City, torpedoed early today off the south coast of Ireland, was rescued by a Netherlands tanker and an airplane, the U. S. liner President Roosevelt radioed today.

"Crew picked up by Dutch tanker assisted by airplane. Resuming course," the message said.

The President Roosevelt proceeded to the rescue from a point 52 miles away after the freighter sent out a "come rescue" message.

The 4,955-ton vessel, en route from Colon in the Canal Zone to England, was owned by the Reardon Smith Line, Ltd., and was in the England-South Pacific trade.

GDYNIA, Poland's only seaport, surrenders to Germany, but fighting continues in north Poland.

WARSAW still holds out against Nazis, but Berlin claims new gains on three sides of city.

PARIS reports indicate fall of German city of Saarbruecken, in rich Saar basin, is near. Both France and Germany rushing fresh troops to front, indicating first "big push" in west is imminent.

LONDON notified by Germany that Germans will not use poison gas or bacteria for duration of hostilities if her enemies also refrain from using such weapons. British freighter, Vancouver City, torpedoed and sunk near Irish coast, crew picked up by Dutch tanker.

MOSCOW causes concern in both Berlin and London by scope and speed of its mobilization, reported to have 4,000,000 men under arms and strong force on Polish border, but still silent on intent, while Berlin reports Soviets plan to occupy eastern Poland, later divide country with Germany and eventually create buffer state between Germany and Poland.

Russia's Mobilization to Full Strength Surprises Even Germans.

Thousands on Way to Front to Help French in Onward Push Along Siegfried Line.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(U.P.)—Poland urged more effective British assistance in the war against Germany in a note delivered to the foreign office tonight by Ambassador Count Edward Raczynski.

(By Associated Press)

PARIS—French forces, supported by thousands of newly landed British troops, were reported today in military dispatches to be closing in from three sides on Saarbruecken, industrial center of the rich Saar basin.

Seizure of the city, the reports indicated, was considered vital to give the French a jumping off point for a wider attack against the heavily fortified Siegfried line.

Indications the poilus were being hard pressed by concentrated German artillery fire came in an official war communique.

"Strong action by heavy enemy artillery on heights south of Saarbruecken," the communique read.

Reich troops previously were reported moving heavy, long range guns into the battle areas. The position of the firing batteries and the intensity of the shelling were not disclosed.

Mass Reinforcements.

German reinforcements were reported massing behind Saarbruecken to forestall a direct French attack and occupation of the Saar capital.

The German artillery bombardment was described as "extremely violent" and resulting in destruction of some roads leading

WAR HORRORS: Nazi Planes Bomb, Machinegun Refugees

SNIATYN, Poland (At the Rumanian Border)—(Time of Writing Ungiven)—(AP)—Weary refugees, trudging along the main highways of southeastern Poland today, reported they were under continual fire of German planes using bombs and machine-guns.

They said every train, railroad station, bridge and automobile in the area was an actual and potential target of the swarming aerial invaders.

It was estimated that at least 100,000 Poles, moving mostly afoot toward the Rumanian frontier, were fleeing Poland's war-swept zones.

With communications disrupted, making accuracy impossible, it was estimated in foreign circles that civilian casualties in scattered towns and byways averaged at least a hundred daily.

Persons coming through the countryside as I did could see blasted homes, burning factories, shattered railroad lines—and tangled bodies of men, women and children.

DEATH MYSTERY

Toledo War Vet Found Shot To Death In Blazing Home.

TOLEDO—(AP)—An investigation was under way to determine if Charles Gralinski, 44-year-old World war veteran was murdered and his home set afire early today, or whether he committed suicide and a spark caused the blaze that destroyed his residence.

Neighbors discovered the house afire at 4:30 a. m., broke in and pulled Gralinski from his bed. An examination disclosed a bullet wound in his head.

Predicts Short War But Sees U. S. Involved If Arms Embargo's Repealed

Weisman Hits at Indirect Assistance In Talk to 400 Bankers Here.

The current European conflict will be surprisingly short, but if congress approves President Roosevelt's request to repeal the arms embargo, it certainly will draw United States into the war, 400 northcentral Ohio bankers were told here last night.

The speaker was Russell Weisman, financial and economic writer for the Cleveland Pdain Dealer. His address followed the annual banquet of Group Six of the Ohio Bankers association at Westbrook Country club.

Weisman said he did not favor either the repeal of the act or maintaining it intact, but warned that any revisions which would allow for the shipment of arms, munitions and implements of war to nations now fighting in Europe would involve United States in the conflict.

"We have proclaimed our neutrality up to the hilt and unless we intend to pursue this course, then in the interests of our country and civilization we had better go to war today and bring it to the earliest conclusion," he said.

"There should be no pussyfooting about the matter. The United States should either be a part of the war or stand aside without providing any indirect assistance."

He based his prediction that the present European conflict would be of "surprisingly short duration" on the fact that Germany was faced with economic exhaustion and could not carry on an effective war for more than two years.

"Germany has virtually been on a war basis since 1914 and any nation on a war basis for 25 years cannot hope to carry on an effective war for more than two years in the face of an economic blockade," he asserted.

Censorship Controls Flow of War News

(By Associated Press)

Censorship of news is effective in nearly all European countries. It is especially thorough in Great Britain, France and Germany.

So far the chief apparent hindrance imposed by censorship has been disruption of normal communications, but it is obvious that censors seek to prevent the sending of unfavorable news from their respective countries.

Some news dispatches are transmitted in ten or fifteen minutes; others are delayed for hours and some doubtless are suppressed by the censorship.

WASHINGTON: Roosevelt's Chances For Repeal Gain

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—An emergency atmosphere and booming business improved the chances of an administration victory on the neutrality question in the special congressional session convening one week from today.

President Roosevelt summoned congress to meet Sept. 21. He hopes to restrict legislation to emergency measures, particularly repeal of the neutrality act arms embargo. There was an increasing demand for anti-profiteering legislation.

Opposition to the administration neutrality program was weakening somewhat. Sen. Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah) predicted that Mr. Roosevelt would have 15 to 16 votes in the senate foreign relations committee for repeal of the arms embargo.

Mr. Roosevelt has appealed for adjournment of politics, but the practical judgment here is that events are making the arms embargo a major issue between Democrats and Republicans.

Sens. William E. Borah (R., Ida.), Gerald P. Nye (R., N. D.) and Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.)—he is a standout candidate for 1940 Republican presidential nomination—have challenged the administration's program in sharp language.

Exercise Benefits the Complexion

By MME. QUI VIVE

Your beauty reporter kept an eye peeled for pretty legs this passing summer. Goodness knows there were plenty of them on display: girls in bathing suits, girls in shorts, girls in skirts so abbreviated they scarcely covered the kneecaps. The verdict: there is room for improvement. Fat legs, thin ones, knock-knees and bowed legs. Bulky ankles, fatted calves. Very sad. Something should be done about 'em.

It is time that the amalgamated association of beauty seekers, composed of every woman in the civilized world, took its collective mind off of make-up and curlycues for awhile and looked after the needs of the feminine shape. A fine figure is as great a beauty asset as a pretty face; in fact, some people believe it is a greater one. Slender, straight legs are an important detail of the physical composition.

Athletic women usually have good-looking legs. Muscles are in normal condition. She of the skinny pins is a girl who is a nibbler, who doesn't get enough sleep. If she will take a long walk every day she will develop the fibers, chug up an appetite that will put a little fat on her calves, or where her calves should be. Miss Plumpie needs exercise more strenuous than walking. She must jump rope, do high kicking, walk tippy toe, run up and down stairs and throw the bonbon box out of the window. If she lives on fat-producing foods, no exercise will change the rounded silhouette.

There are more knock-kneed and bow-legged girls than boys. This state of affairs is explained by wise men of the medical profession. Boys get more exercise when they are small, they eat more and simpler food than girls. Thus the deficiencies of bone structure are overcome in the early years. Because of violent exercise, food is more quickly and thoroughly assimilated, converted into nutriment that the blood distributes, building a solid, straight bony framework. If you are the mother of a cute little tomboy who plays baseball, climbs trees and chases around playing Indian, don't make a sissy of her. She is on the right beauty track.

If a small child is bow-legged or knock-kneed, special shoes are prescribed by the baby doctor, who will insist upon the taking of one quart of milk a day to supply calcium and vitamins. Milk contains many food elements needed by a growing child.

Operations for the removal of excessive fat on the legs have been done, but why resort to such extreme means of remodeling when the trick can be turned by exercise and a diet in which fat, sweets and starches are cut down? Unless there are glandular disturbances there is no need of lugging around excess weight.

Even if legs are all that they should be, they should have exercise. Five minutes night and morning with the jumping rope will keep them in form. Best to look ahead, ward off anatomical defects of middle age that may be on the way. And all too solid flesh is one of them.

Madonna lilies do very well without special winter attention, but if you cover the ground over them in the fall with a layer one to two inches deep of old well-rotted manure, the flowers will be better next year because of this extra feeding and winter cover.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, Sept. 15.

Moderately-favorable conditions are shown by an interesting array of planetary directions. These should stimulate employment, business, writings, publicity and all manner of home, educational or cultural activities. There are hints of intrigues of a pleasant nature, and certain rather fascinating undertones in connection with intimate relations demand prudent, circumspect restraints.

Those whose birthday is may be assured of a fairly progressive and fortunate year, with some surprising developments. The latter mainly affect the private affiliations, in which some glamorous or alluring intrigue may call for much discretion and restraint if pitfalls and regrets are to be averted.

A child born on this day may be active, efficient and fairly ambitious. Its talents and inclinations lie in the direction of art, music, literature or acting.

Marriage Meddlers

Miss Whitlock's response to my ultimatum concerning my father was instantaneous.

"I'll waken him whenever you say," she said. "And I'll tell you now what I'd like him to have for luncheon.

"We told him half an hour, perhaps longer," I said. "I think, if we waken him at the end of three-quarters of an hour and his luncheon is ready on a tray, we can say that Mr. Underwood has not returned—whether that is true or not—and coax him to eat while he is waiting."

"You can coax him," she said smiling. "Now what is the hour I am to waken him?"

I told her, and she looked at her watch.

"Give me five minutes after that time," she said. "I'll have his face and hands bathed, and him invested in lounging clothes. But see that the tray, with everything piping hot, is at the door exactly five minutes after the time for waking him."

"It shall be here," I promised her, with the comfortable feeling of reliance upon Katie which I always have at the farm. And I turned, upon the promise, and sped down the kitchen stairs again, outlining to Katie exactly hat had to be done.

"Ain't it de cat's viskers?" she said—"dot me, I have soom of de nicest schicken broth I efer feexed in my life. You bet your boots your fader going like dot stoof. Eet vould grow hair on a bald head.

"Me, I feex eferyting shoost like you say," she went on, "und I have eet shoost on dot. But—ees he going to svallow eet shoost on dot? Omelet, she no keep, you know."

"I am sure the nurse will take care of that," I told her, and with the feeling that I at last had cast away my handcuffs, I hurried up the stairs to the place where I most wanted to be, the nursery.

I had had time for only the most cursory of greetings to Junior and Roderick in the living room when we came in. Then their grandmother had shepherded them upstairs to Katharine, who wisely had not brought Faith downstairs at all, and my arms were aching for the clasp of her baby arms.

Lillian rose from her watching post outside and met me at the nursery door.

"Anything you want me to do?" she whispered.

"Not a thing," I answered. "Come on in with me. I want to get my arms around Faith—I haven't seen her yet—and I'm depending on you to keep the boys occupied for a minute or two."

"I'm the best little occupier in the country," she gibed, and I put up my hand and knocked upon the nursery door.

There was a pause, a low-voiced sentence from Katharine, and then through the door came a military challenge in Junior's unmistakable voice.

"Who goes there?"

Lillian put her hand upon my lips lightly and answered.

"Friends!"

There was a gasp from within, and then we heard Roderick's voice.

"Steady, Jun! Remember you're on guard!"

"Steady, yourself," Junior retorted. "I'll bet you're just as excited as I am." Then his voice changed and lifted in ludicrous challenge.

"We are armed, we warn you," he said. "Take your weapons out and lay them aside before you come in. Do you agree to that?"

"We agree," Lillian said solemnly, and then the door opened, to show Junior and Roderick, clad in their junior Boy Scout uniforms, standing at military attention, with their hands upon exaggerated wooden play guns.

"Advance, friends, and give the countersign," Junior challenged, but his eyes were fixed hungrily upon my face and I knew how he longed to be in my arms.

Fortunately, I remembered a similar play of theirs a year before, and murmured "Faith," hoping that I was right.

The absurd guns clattered to a resting place on the floor beside them, and Roderick reached past us and closed the door.

"Correct," he said. "You may pass, friends." And, waiting for no further permission, I went swiftly past them to where my beautiful little daughter gurgled me a welcome from her play pen, while Lillian carefully engaged the sentinels in conversation.

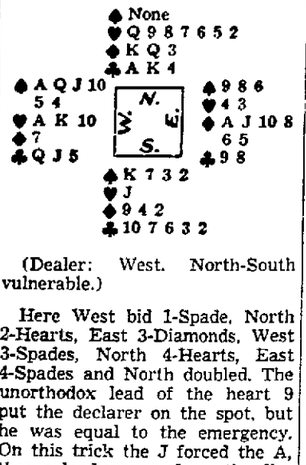
TWO PLAYS COMBINED

Among the most beautiful plays in the game are those which combine features of two types of tricky moves, such as a squeeze and a lead-throwing end-play. The running of your long suit will sometimes oblige one defender to discard in a way which offers you a chance to throw him into the lead and leave him no alternative but to pitch away from a tenace right into your own cards.



(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

Here West bid 1-Spade, North 2-Hearts, East 3-Diamonds, West 3-Spades, North 4-Hearts, East 4-Spades and North doubled. The unorthodox lead of the heart 9 put the declarer on the spot, but he was equal to the emergency. On this trick the J forced the A, then a lead was made to the diamond A, West being prepared to finesse, but North split his honors. Followed then the spade 9, spade 8, spade 10 and then the spade A, which dropped South's king and also compelled North to make a disastrous discard. He cut himself down to three hearts, three clubs and the diamond K rather than keep one more diamond which would be topped by dummy's J.

Declarer proceeded with his plan, leading the club Q to the K. This time North was able to return his diamond K, which West ruffed. Then, however, declarer led the club 5, which passed around to the 10. A diamond return by South would have been to dummy's now good J, so he returned a club to the A. Now North was end-playing, having only the heart Q-9-8, from which he had to lead into the K-10.

"The Mikado."

One of the best loved of the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas has been filmed in technicolor and will be shown at the Ohio Friday only. It is being presented under the sponsorship of the Mansfield Music Study club. John Barclay, giant basso of opera and the radio, sings the title role, and Kenny Baker, late of the Jack Benny radio hour, sings Nanki Poo. The other players and singers are all taken from New York and London casts of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas. The D'Oyly Carte chorus is heard in the ensemble music. Reviewers have given this first pictured G. and S. opus a big hand, declaring it the "cutest" thing since "Snow White and The Seven Dwarfs."

Nancy Drew Series.

Wierd and eerie is the latest adventure of Nancy Drew as pictured in "Nancy Drew and The Hidden Staircase," the fourth picture in the Warner series about this intrepid girl detective, who is played by young Bonita Granville. Nancy and her boy friend are caught in a situation where they have a choice of being buried alive or drowned, but these two use their wits with amazing success. The picture is the "bank night" attraction at the Madison Friday and will be shown only for that day.

New Serial Opens.

In addition to its regular two-feature bill, the Ritz will launch a new serial the last two days of the week It will be Jackie Cooper in "Scouts To The Rescue," a thriller about a troop of Boy Scouts who aid in rounding up a gang of counterfeiters. The main feature will be "Ex-Champ" with Victor McLaglen, Tom Brown, Nan Gray and Constance Moore, a story of a former boxing champion and his son and daughter. The usual Western feature this week has handsome John Wayne in one of the Three Mesquiteers series.

Cagney and O'Brien.

For its last of the week bill the Majestic has chosen the high drama, "Angels With Dirty Faces," the James Cagney-Pat O'Brien tragedy of present day society. Two boys from the slums take different paths—one to become a priest and the other a gangster. But the latter has the greater influence over the boys like himself and only the electric chair can wipe out that influence. The second feature is Dorothy Page, in "The Singing Cowgirl."

Bellhop Solves Mystery.

Two murders in a hotel room and a brief case full of stolen bonds gives Frankie Darro plenty to do in "Irish Luck," a Park theater attraction. Frankie is a hotel bellhop with a penchant for "detecting" and he runs into a set of mysterious circumstances in his own hotel. But in the end he solves a bank robbery and the murders. Laurence Olivier in "Clouds Over Europe" is the second attraction. Olivier is the romantic gypsy of "Wuthering Heights."

EXCUSES SPEEDER

SAN FRANCISCO—(U.P.)—Miss Julia Welton, appearing before Judge Hugh L. Smith on a charge of reckless driving, pleaded that it was all the fault of her latest style trick hat which obstructed her view and caused a collision. The judge took one look at the hat and ruled: "You win; it certainly must have been the hat."

Battle Lines Drawn on Grid

Youngstown 1st Ohio School to Launch Season.

(By Associated Press)

Ohio college football headquarters communique No. 1: "Slight local advances were reported today and positions were strengthened generally in preparation for heavy action on the gridiron front. Battle lines were drawn in the Youngstown sector for the first actual warfare of the campaign."

Strategists interpreted the communique as meaning that here and there in Ohio college football camps some progress was being shown, and that at Youngstown the Penguins were all set for the opening game of the season tonight with Geneva college of Geneva, Pa.

"We expect to be stronger than a year ago, but I believe Geneva will have practically its entire 1938 team," Coach Dick Beede said in predicting a close game.

Alfred Holbrook will be the second Ohio team to get into acton, meeting Union college at Barbourville, Ky., Saturday. The Manchester gridders play the longest season of any Ohio team, closing their schedule Dec. 2.

A squad of 28 turned out for the first practice at Wooster, including eight lettermen. Failure of four lettermen and several reservists to return to school put a damper on the Scots' hopes for the season.

Coach Sam Selby at Westerville declared all positions on the Otterbein team wide open. His squad of 26 includes eight lettermen.

Nova Rules Favorite, Says It's Put-Up Job.

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— The odds-layers around Broad and Locust streets' "praying corner" established Lou Nova a 5 to 4 favorite today to thump Tony Galento soundly Friday night in Municipal Stadium, and a lot of the customary "short-enders" immediately wondered why.

Nova, himself, underdog in the last three tilts that "made" him as a heavyweight contender—against Gunner Barlund, Tommy Farr and Maxie Baer, doesn't like it even a little bit. He vowed positively it was a put-up job to get his "nanny." And the man in the street was even more mystified.

CANTON SQUARES SERIES WITH SPRINGFIELD, 3-2

CANTON —(AP)— All square with one victory apiece, Springfield and Canton moved here today for the third game of the Mid-Atlantic league championship series. Three games will be played in Canton, after which the teams will return to Springfield—if need be. Canton recovered last night from the opening game jitters and nosed out the Indians 3 to 2 although outhit 11 to 4.

ARRANGE FOR SERIES

CHICAGO —(INS)— Kenesaw M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, will meet tomorrow with representatives of the New York Yankees and three National league clubs to discuss world series arrangements. The National league clubs to be represented are the Cincinnati Reds, St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs.

No Favorites Left In Field

1938 Champ Among Golfers Beaten in U. S. Amateur.

By FRITZ HOWELL

CHICAGO — (AP) — No matter what happens today in the third and fourth round matches of the 43rd national amateur golf championship (and anything can happen in this one, it seems) you can lay it on the line that no favorites will be eliminated. The reason? There are no favorites left!

A bunch of guys named "Joe" cut a wide swath through the field of 64 qualifiers yesterday, and the talent toll was terrific.

The sprinkling of "big names" still in the running included Harry Todd of Dallas, western amateur champion; C. Ross Somerville, the Canadian who won the 1932 amateur; John P. Burke of Rye, N. Y., the collegiate ruler, and Ray Billows of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., finalist in the 1937 amateur.

Last year's champion, Willie Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., was eliminated, along with B. Patrick Abbot of California, the runner-up.

Eddie Meister, jr., of Cleveland, the only surviving Ohioan, was paired against Don Schumacher of Dallas, Tex., in a third round match. Schumacher eliminated Johnny Goodman of Omaha, one up.

Redskins Try To Catch Sox

Allen Slated to Oppose Hub Team in Opener Today.

BOSTON — (AP) — The Indians went into the opener of their three-game Boston series today six and a half games behind the second-place Red Sox, but they haven't given up yet on that longing desire for the runner-up spot.

Johnny Allen was slated to pitch in what generally was conceded as Cleveland's final bid to catch the Hub team. Eldon Auker was due for the Sox.

The Redskins arrived in a gala mood as a result of walloping the Yankees yesterday, 9 to 4, behind Bob Feller's seven-hit pitching.

It was Feller's 21st victory and gave the Tribe a record of five triumphs in 11 games at New York this year.

Bob blanked the Yanks with three hits for the first eight innings. Red Ruffing, who now shares the most-victory lead with Feller, was the victim, being pounded for eight hits and six runs in six innings. Spurgeon Chandler gave up the final three runs in the seventh.

The victory cost the Indians the services of big Hal Trosky for about a week. He suffered a badly sprained ankle in a baseline collision with Joe DiMaggio.

NEWS-JOURNAL SPORTS

IN THE RUHL BOOK

By OSCAR RUHL,
News-Journal Sports Editor.

THE roar of the crowd will be deadened by the roar of the cannon, the athletic fields will become training grounds and the theaters of sports will be converted into hospitals in Europe next year. War puts an end to sport, you see.

In addition to the Olympic games, which were set for Finland, the events to be erased from the 1940 calendar by the present conflict overseas are the Davis and Wightman Cup matches, British Open and amateur golf championships, Henley Regatta, Derby at Epsom, international cricket matches for the "Ashes" and international polo and yacht competition.

Noticed a familiar name in the lineup of Akron's Mid-Atlantic league club the other day. It was that of "Gabby" Garbarino, who started the season on the Mansfield hill staff in 1937.

This football fight the Navy and Notre Dame forces will hold up in Cleveland in late October is expected to pack the Stadium. The Irish have already sold three-quarters of the total number used in 1933. Navy has more orders for tickets than were sold in either 1932 and 1934.

REMEMBER — When it was permissible to pull or push the ball carrier? That was back in 1905 when the rules called for five yards in three downs.

WHAT, NO RAZZING?

THE fair city of Richmond, Va., has come into the spotlight over a little matter of baseball razzing. It appears from news dispatches that this latest bid for fame started when a rather enthusiastic fan, none too well satisfied with the way things were progressing, set out to do a bit of old-time razzing. The Richmond police interfered. The fan was hustled off to jail and later a fine was imposed on him.

Heckling is a sacred part of the game, we contend. Baseball without raspberries would be as colorless as football games without the bands.

Today's mail brought a letter from Orest Musille, now a patient at the Avalon sanitorium at Mt. Vernon. He was the backer of the Musille Cigars, one of the crack softball clubs in the city. ED. NOTE — Orest's getting along swell, too.

TO HENRY PARNELL — Thanks for the copy of the New London souvenir football program. Swell piece of work, we'd say.

"There are only two things of which I am absolutely certain," Henry McLemore, United Press correspondent, writes. "One is that no man ever got the book he wanted from a circulating library the first time he asked for it, and the other is that Lou Nova will beat Tony Galento when they fight in Philadelphia Friday night!" Place your bets, boys.

* * *

Pete Linster's defeat by Joe Mayer in the Possum Run finals last Sunday marked his first defeat in eight club championship matches. Quite a record, Pete.

The Big Ten may discontinue booking football games with Southeastern conference teams because it doesn't like the way the Southeastern does business in the open.

THEY'LL BE THERE

Even if the Reds don't win,
They'll stumble, reel or stagger in.

By Eddie Brietz.

THEN there was that Brave pitcher who said that when he took the mound a ball felt like a marble in his hand but that, "along about the eighth inning when with the bases loaded and a tough man at the plate, it feels like a basketball with a 16-pound shot inside."

Costs $63

The photo above shows Elias (Pop) Mathias, custodian of athletic equipment at Mansfield high school, and a set of the new livery the Tygers will don Saturday afternoon when they lift the lid against Akron West at Stadium field. The equipment each Tyger will wear costs approximately $63.

MUSILLE CIGARS PLAY UNDER PERRYSVILLE ARCS

The Musille Cigars will meet the Nestle Dairy team of Perrysville in a night game at Perrysville at 8:15 p. m. Friday. The Cigars are requested to meet at the store at 6:30 p. m.

But Expense Is Minor If It Prevents Injuries, Coach Contends.

IT COSTS money to outfit a football player, particularly a Tyger. The cost of the equipment to be donned by the Tygers for their inaugural with Akron West at Stadium field Saturday will amount to approximately $63 per man.

This may sound like an elaborate sum, but, as Coach Paul Snyder says, "an ounce of prevention and an extra pad is worth a month of inactivity."

He points to the well-stuffed blocking pads, new shoe cleats, better shoulder pads which take the shock off collar bones, thicker foam-rubber pads for bruises as the best of the new impediments against the normal crop of hurts and sprains.

* * *

The most expensive of the new equipment are the satin trousers, which set the athletic department back $14 a pair. Shoulder pads are priced at $12 apiece. Other items: helmet, $10; jersey, $8; shoes, $7.50; hip and kidney pads, $7.25; rib pads, $3, and socks, $1.20.

FAVORITES UPSET

FOREST HILLS, N. Y.—Adrian Quist was defeated by Wayne Sabin. Frankie Parker lost to Gilbert Hunt and Elwood Cook was beaten by Welby Van Horn in national tennis championship upsets yesterday.

Grid Battles Won on Field, Not on Paper

Coach Snyder Refuses to Accept Victory Over West Until Game Is Played.

BECAUSE Coach Russ Beichley annually comes up with a pretty good football club at Akron West, Paul Snyder, Mansfield high mentor, has not yet accepted a victory over the Cowboys, who come to Stadium field Saturday to help the Tygers launch their season.

Only five lettermen are back at West this season, according to Akron reports, but prospects are not supposed to be discouraging.

Beichley is said to have a wealth of material from the 1938 reserve team on hand this year, and he is expected to weld together another title contender.

Akron West has never beaten Mansfield on the gridiron, but the Tygers can remember several very interesting battles.

The new Tyger club may find the Cowboys a problem again Saturday.

Training work at the Stadium field is progressing splendidly, according to Snyder, but the matter of a lineup is still indefinite.

One of the features of recent workouts has been the form displayed by Joe Logan, colored star of the track team. Snyder believes his speed can be used to advantage if the proper line blocking is provided.

A senior, Logan is making his first bid for a berth on the football team this year, but he has had sandlot experience.

Logan's chief weakness is on the defense, but he has developed rapidly, and may be one of the main cogs in the Snyder machine before many games pass.

Apparently, Snyder's chief regret is the injury which will keep Dave Templeton out of the lineup Saturday. A pulled ligament has not responded to treatment, and Snyder has no intention of using him against West for fear of aggravating the hurt.

The Mansfield line is showing steady improvement, particularly in blocking.

Today marked the last day of hard work for the Tygers in preparation for the Akron team. A signal drill Friday will end the pre-season workouts.

Findlay Cinches Fostoria Series

FINDLAY—(AP)—A crack at the Ohio State league championship was assured the Findlay Oilers today as they completed a conquest of Fostoria in the preliminary Shaughnessy playoff.

The Oilers whipped the Red Birds 14 to 7 last night for the second straight time to win the two-out-of-three series.

The Oilers will meet the victor of tonight's deciding game between Lima and Fremont. Lima came back to square the series at one each last night with a 3 to 0 victory.

Slated for Starting Assignments Saturday

There still is some question in Coach Paul Snyder's mind as to the starting Mansfield high school lineup for the opening grid tussle of the season with Akron West at Stadium field at 2:30 p. m. Saturday, but there is a possibility that the Tygers shown in the above photo will get the call. The linemen in the picture above are, left to right: Russ Beer, Capt. Mike Horvath, Bob Guegold, Dick White, Dick Weaver, Ed Goettle and Gene Miller.

Thompson's 2-Hit Pitching Job Gives Reds Shot In Arm

Rookie May Help McKechnie Solve Portion of Current Mound Problems.

By JUDSON BAILEY, Associated Press Sports Writer.

THE BEST NEWS Cincinnati has had since the Ohio river stopped rising during its last flood was the two-hit pitching performance just unfurled by Gene (Junior) Thompson.

Thompson shut out the Brooklyn Dodgers 3-0 yesterday for the first victory the Reds have negotiated in more than three weeks with any pitcher other than Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer.

A 21-year-old righthander with four years of minor league experience, Thompson took part in a no-hit spring training game and otherwise proved his worth. However, he has been used as a relief agent most of the season and did not get his first starting call until July 19.

If he is now able to take a regular and effective turn on the mound, some of the Reds' troubles are solved. Both the singles he gave up yesterday came with two out, one was an infield bunt, and no Dodger reached second base.

The immediate effect of this triumph was to preserve Cincinnati's 3½ game lead over the tenacious St. Louis Cardinals, who nosed out the Phillies 10-9 by virtue of Ducky Medwick's two-run homer in the eighth. Cincinnati has 24 games to play.

The Chicago Cubs strengthened their grip on third with a 15-4 blast against the Boston Bees. Hank Lieber led the assault with two home runs.

The New York Giants split a doubleheader with the Pittsburgh Pirates, Harry Gumbert coming up with a spectacular two-hit contribution to take the opener 2-0 and the Buccaneers bunching their hits in the nightcap to win 7-4.

Bobby Feller led the Cleveland Indians to a 9-4 decision over the world champion Yankees for a sweep of the two-game series in getting his 21st victory Feller had a shutout for eight innings and the outcome was never in doubt as the Tribe tromped on Red Ruffing early.

The Boston Red Sox took advantage of the opportunity to chop another nick in New York's American league lead by a 1-0 taming of the Detroit Tigers by Lefty Grove, who allowed only four hits.

The Chicago White Sox, out of the pennant race, took both ends of a doubleheader from the Washington Senators on seven hit pitching jobs by Ted Lyons and Jack Knott. The first went 11-innings to a 3-1 score and the second was called at 4-2 in the eighth because of darkness.

The St. Louis Browns did an about face against the Philadelphia Athletics to win 11-3 on a 17-hit attack.

Tickets Go on Sale For Akron West Game.

Tickets for the opening football game of the new season at Stadium field, which involves the Tygers and Akron West, went on sale at downtown agencies today.

Adult ducats selling at 50 cents may be procured at Brown's drug store, Tawse's pharmacy, Central drug store and Smokehouse, George Sherman, treasurer of the high school athletic association, announced today. The 15-cent grade school student tickets may also be obtained at the downtown agencies. High school student tickets must be purchased at the school, Sherman said.

Blues Again Fail to Check Indians.

Five Kansas City pitchers failed to check a rampaging Indianapolis team in the American association playoffs last night and the Hoosiers won the second straight by a 12 to 4 score. Not to be outdone, the Louisville Colonels again outslugged the Minneapolis Millers and won their second straight, 9 to 8.

Madison Game Tops Arc Bill

Rams Host to Wooster Friday; Massillon Game to Attract Mansfield Fans.

FOOTBALL will swing back into the sports scene this week-end when Ohio's high school elevens inaugurate their campaigns.

Teams in this vicinity will figure prominently in the opening activities which will send nearly all of the state's scholastic clubs into action.

Friday afternoon's schedule will mark the opening of county school seasons. The Friday night schedule is also heavy, with Mansfield high one of the few Ohio schools presenting Saturday football.

Two games of interest to Richland countians will send Bellville and Butler into action against out-of-county foes.

Bellville will return to gridiron warfare with one of the strongest clubs in years on the home field against Centerburg Friday afternoon, while Butler is host to La-Rue.

The major nocturnal attraction as far as Mansfield is concerned will send Coach Al Fendrick's new addition of Rams against a heavy Wooster eleven under the Madison lights at 8:15 p. m. Friday.

Other Friday night games will take Ashland to Willard, Mt. Gilead to Galion, Norwalk to Shelby, Marion St. Mary's to Bucyrus, Upper Sandusky to Marion and Sandusky St. Mary's to Crestline.

A more distant Friday night game which is expected to attract a number of Mansfield fans, not to mention Tyger coaches, is the Massillon inaugural, which pits the Tigers, the home town team's foes next week, against Cleveland Cathedral Latin.

Madison Improves Seating Facilities.

IMPROVED seating facilities will be provided for Ram fans at Madison field this year, Coach Al Fendrick announced today. Bleachers erected at the Fairground for baseball this season will be moved to the Madison field today to double the seating capacity for the opening game Friday night with Wooster. The new bleachers will be erected on the west side.

The Rams will also blossom out in new uniforms Friday night, Fendrick stated. The suits, except for white piping on the trousers, are of the all-green variety as worn last season.

Admission for the games at Madison field this year will be 40 cents for adults and 20 cents for children. The game Friday is scheduled at 8 p. m.

The Rams will complete preparations for the inaugural today when they hold a signal drill under the lights at 7:30 p. m.

BATTLE 16 INNINGS BEFORE BEARS TRIUMPH

(By Associated Press)

Jersey City and Newark are going to extremes in their International league governors' Cup series. It took the longest game in the history of the playoffs—16 innings—to bring the Bears a 3-2 victory over the Giants last night to even their series after two games.

The Buffalo Bisons opened their series against the Rochester Red Wings last night with an easy 8-1 triumph, achieved on the five-hit flinging of Lefty Al Smith.

HUMAN SKULL CAUGHT ON LINE

COLUMBIA, S. C.— (U.P.) —A fish-ghost story to end all fish and ghost stories is being related by a group of Columbia fishermen who recently spent the night at Lake Murray.

Along about midnight one of the party said, "I see a woman over there on the water." His companion laughed at him, but when he persisted they rowed out to the spot.

Sure enough, there was no one there. It looked like a likely place for fish, though, and one man dropped his line in the water.

He felt an immediate tug and pulled in. Caught on his hook was a human skull, a .38 caliber pistol bullet embedded in the top.

These payments are calculated at Household's new reduced rates of 2% monthly on balances up to $300 and 1½% yearly on balances over $300 to $500. These rates are less than legal maximum, and are the same to everyone—one price to all. Only borrowers sign—no endorsers on any loan. No credit inquiries of friends or relatives.

Chuckle Corner

Years ago American butchers removed the skin off sausages. Now German scientists have gone them one better. They've removed the meat, too.

An explorer has found a South American bird that brays like a donkey. That's one country where, we'll bet, no one sleeps late.

The Germans certainly have their hands full. They not only are fighting on two fronts but they also have to sweep up all those leaflets the British are dropping on them.

A European government propagandist has a tough life. He must constantly think up new and even more incredible imaginary victories for his nation's armies.

SWITCH TO NEW FIELD IN HOPE FOR WAR RALLY

Traders Turn to Industrial Group as Market Fails to Hold Even Trend.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stocks tumbled and bounced back at frequent intervals in today's market as traders tried to make up their minds regarding just where and to what extent war benefits would fall in the industrial field.

Switching into merchandising and specialty stocks that had failed to participate in the war rally was evident throughout.

Confusing was a sharp drop in the British pound in terms of the dollar to the lowest rate since May, 1933.

U. S. government bonds improved. Corporation loans were mixed, with secondary rails still popular. Grains were given another forward push, while uneven trends prevailed among other commodities.

Best share performers were Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Western Union, Santa Fe, Pullman, American Woolen, Remington Rand, Newport Industries, Standard Oil of N. J., American Radiator and Fajardo Sugar.

American shares were under some pressure at Amsterdam. Other European markets continued restricted.

A favorable straw in the market wind was seen in mounting orders for railway equipment by leading roads, reflecting, it was said, expanding shipments and the necessity of providing for further growth of traffic.

Stressing the increasing business tempo, Dun & Bradstreet estimated bank clearings in 22 principal cities for the week ended Sept. 13, rose 18.5 per cent over the corresponding 1938 period to the highest total since the week of Feb. 8, in the current year.

68 TAKE FINAL CITIZEN EXAMS IN CITY SEPT. 26

County's 2nd Largest Class Includes Natives of 14 Other Countries.

Sixty-eight Mansfield and Richland county residents will take the final examination for citizenship papers Sept. 26 at the courthouse, comprising the second largest citizenship class in the county's history. Seventy-two took the examination last March.

Three of the applicants are natives of war-torn Poland, while 10 are from Germany and the others are natives of 12 other European countries and Canada.

Two native American women who lost their citizenship when they married foreign-born men are in the group seeking naturalization, according to Norman Henry, deputy county clerk in charge of citizenship papers. A law which has since been repealed deprived wives of foreigners of their citizenship rights if they were married previous to 1922.

23 From Yugoslavia.

There are 23 natives of Yugoslavia in the citizenship class, nine from Rumania, four from Greece, three each from Poland, Canada and Czechoslovakia, two each from Italy, Bulgaria and England, and one each from Spain, Turkey, Scotland and Hungary.

Sixty-two of the group are Mansfield residents, while five are from Shelby and one from Plymouth.

Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston will conduct the examinations. Each applicant is required to provide two witnesses for questioning concerning the applicant's character.

CONCEDES FRAUD IN MARRIAGES

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—Circuit judge Frank C. O'Malley believes every marriage is based on fraud—more or less. In an annulment hearing a woman plaintiff testified that her husband had misrepresented his intentions before their marriage and that he married her for her money.

In taking the case under advisement, Judge O'Malley commented:

"If I granted an annulment in every case in which there was misrepresentation before marriage, I'd be doing nothing else. Every marriage is based more or less on a fraud. A person always puts his best foot forward."

PUSH CAMPAIGN

Township Officials Seek to Boost Membership to 150.

A committee of seven members of the Richland County Association of Township Trustees and Clerks had launched a drive today for 50 new members to boost the organization's membership to a goal of 150.

John W. Selby, chairman of the county association, said the drive would be directed on the 74 candidates for trustee and clerk posts at the November elections, all prospective members.

Appointed by Selby, the membership committee includes R. E. Mentzer, Troy township; Grover Snyder, Monroe township; Oscar Krichbaum, Sandusky township; C. G. Griffith, Cass township; Leroy Tennis, Butler township; William Shaffner, Franklin township, and W. F. Beam, Madison township.

A report on the membership drive probably will be submitted at a dinner meeting Dec. 12 in Mansfield.

Signs of the Times In England--Gas Masks at Old Swimmin' Hole

In England these days it seems you can part with anything, (including your clothes) except your gas mask. The scene was taken at the "ole swimming hole" at Buckinghamshire, Eng., where many evacuated London children are being cared for.

State Tests New Type of 'Hot Mix,' Costs Much Less

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—A new type of "hot mix" road material which can be produced very cheaply may afford the solution to paving of Ohio's secondary roads, Highway Director Robert S. Beightler announced today.

This year the material will be used on between 60 and 70 miles of roads as an experiment, and will be used in large quantities if it proves successful.

The new mix—T137—was purchased for $3.40 per ton or $6.32 for a cubic yard.

Beightler said the cost of T35 (common black top mix) had been reduced in recent bids to $8.20 per cubic yard, which, he said, was less than the $12.57 cubic yard cost "paid under the Davey regime."

2 RALLIES TO USHER IN GRID SEASON HERE

'Pep' Meetings and Bonfire to Precede Mansfield-Akron Opener.

A football rally and bonfire at 7:30 p. m. today at the old Columbia Tire field on Bowman street and another rally at 11 a. m. Friday in the Senior high school auditorium, will precede the opening of the 1939 scholastic grid season in Mansfield.

Tonight's bonfire and rally is sponsored by the Junior Association of Commerce and will be the first rally of this type to be held in Mansfield in several years.

Paul Snyder, new football coach at the school, will speak briefly to the student body and will introduce the 1939 Tyger team which opens its season by playing Akron West at Stadium field Saturday.

The student body will be led in school yells by the cheerleaders, and music will be furnished by the high school band, directed by J. Merton Holcombe, who will also lead the crowd in singing school songs. Jack Pealer of the J. A. C., is chairman of the rally committee.

Coach Snyder and Vern Hoffman, new basketball coach, are to be introduced to the student body during the "pep" rally Friday morning.

They will introduce Mike Horvath, captain of the team who will present the team. Arrangements are in charge of a committee of teachers comprised of Zane Wilson, A. LeMoine Derr and Floyd Million.

Twenty members of the Student Representative Council today were named to serve as ushers at school assemblies and to operate the school's lost and found department, both S. R. C. projects.

Eight were assigned to operate the lost and found department for the first semester of the year each working in the department one period a day. Those named and the period they will work are, Marion Reese, first; Virginia Fairman, second; Robert Henry, third; Mildred Miller, fourth; Janet Baughman, fifth; Richard Burkholder, sixth; Marjorie Hale, seventh and Edward Eisele, eighth.

Students who will serve as ushers for assemblies for the first six weeks of the year are, Harold Williams, chairman, Marshall Smith, Robert Lantz, Richard Burkholder, Virginia Fairman, Lois Robinson, Steve Karnavas, James Thomas, Marjorie Boals, Francis Brown, Mildred Miller and Janet Kelley.

FORM CLUB FOR FOX HUNTING

CLANTON, Ala.—(U.P.)—The call to hounds is being heard over south Alabama these days.

Buddy Ellison, of Clanton, has been elected president of a fox hunt association composed of 125 Alabama sportsmen.

The men, using 72 hounds, recently uncovered several young foxes in a day-long hunt in the vicinity of Ball Mountain.

JACKRABBIT LANDS HIGH

ALTURAS, Cal. — (U.P.) — The three best theories of how a jackrabbit got stretched across the telephone wires here and short circuited them were as follows: First and least probable, that it jumped there; second, that an automobile struck the rabbit and hoisted it there; third, that a hawk carried it off and dropped it there.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1939.

Except for the more obstinate individualists, central Ohio's straw hat season ends tomorrow.

"Those places in Poland have such odd names," observed a recent visitor from Ypsilanti to a friend from Keokuk.

Roosevelt's Greatest Opportunity

WITH a call issued to congress to convene in special session next Thursday, President Roosevelt faces what may be the greatest opportunity of his lifetime to regain present-day public favor and make for himself a highly creditable place in American history.

Mr. Roosevelt has frequently declared that he "hates war," and that he will do all within his power to prevent the United States from entering the present European conflict.

The American people are confident that the president is sincere in these statements and that his recognition of patriotic duty to his country and the welfare of its people surmounts any partisan feeling he may have.

There has been growing belief, in recent months, that talk of a third term candidacy for President Roosevelt has been largely a matter of political maneuvering, and that the president's refusal to definitely commit himself on this subject has also been greatly influenced by partisan considerations rather than by customary frankness.

It is deemed quite unlikely that either President Roosevelt, or the Democratic party, would be willing to break sound precedent against a third term, or that the American people would approve such a departure from long-established practice.

An emergency such as now exists calls for concentration of all energies toward solution of difficult national and international problems and leaves no time for partisan bickering or intra-party strife.

The men who have been chosen to represent the people of this country, both in executive and legislative capacities, should show themselves big enough to forget, in this crisis, that they are Democrats or Republicans, and to keep uppermost in mind that they are AMERICANS.

No more valuable service to his country could now be performed by President Roosevelt than that of immediately and definitely announcing that, under no circumstances, will he accept nomination for a third term, that he will support the presidential candidate nominated by his party, and that, meanwhile, he will call into counsel the clearest thinkers and men of the soundest judgment in America, in total disregard of their political affiliations.

At some time between now and next June President Roosevelt must say that he will not accept a third term. If he will do it now—and will then proceed, as president of the whole people, toward solution of intricate problems of state, he will inspire confidence in congress and throughout the country, to an extent that is made impossible while he is regarded as a shrewd politician jockeying for a third term.

It sometimes seems that rat-exterminating campaigns show too much concentration on one form of pests.

No Substitute for Newspapers

RADIO BROADCASTING went into action on an unprecedented scale when Germany invaded Poland and Britain and France declared war.

War bulletins came at all sorts of times, in and between all sorts of programs, and even news programs which professed to be rather formal and fixed were juggled around and hard for listeners to find.

Now that the emergency is over, and radio has settled down again to its normal functions, an interesting comment comes from the magazine Newsweek. Two things are evident, says this news magazine.

First, "the radio is indebted to journalism for most of its coverage, since its actual news comes largely from Associated Press, United Press and International News Service, while its better commentators are newspaper-trained."

Second, "circulation of newspapers has jumped in the current situation, indicating that the scattering bits of wireless news and comment have generated an appetite for the broad coverage and analysis furnished only by the daily and weekly press."

Hitler has expressed belief that he will go down in history as a great artist, rather than as a statesman—but many think he will be best remembered as a paper hanger.

War 'Prosperity' Forecast

THE TREND of "money rates" lately is upward. Financial experts are saying that money will cost more from now on. Interest rates may rise, people will pay more for loans, the government will do likewise, and bankers will again have an outlet for the idle funds in their vaults.

This development, if it really comes, will be a natural accompaniment of the war situation. It presupposes the stimulation of American industry and agriculture by war orders. The history of the World war and its "war babies" suggests it, and American investors and speculators seem to be assuming that the story will be repeated.

Present enforcement of the neutrality law puts obstacles in the way of munition profits, but there is general expectation that the law will be revised so as to allow such sales on a "cash and carry" basis.

Thought for the day: The United States will not get into the war because of talking too little.

Women Pedestrians Safer

ONLY 21.9 per cent of the pedestrians killed in traffic last year were women. The National Safety Council is not sure why women negotiate streets and highways more safely than men, but suggests a number of reasons.

In the first place, women may really be more cautious than men. They are more accustomed to watching out for the safety of children and consequently may have developed habits of carefulness. Again, 72 per cent of pedestrian fatalities occur at night, at which time fewer women are normally either driving or walking.

From 8 to 35 per cent of pedestrian deaths result from intoxication. Women who drink to the point of intoxication are not so numerous among pedestrians as are men in the same state. Women usually wear lighter-colored clothing than men, which increases their visibility at night.

The rumor is gradually getting around that the New York World fair is to carry through next year—if you have had any doubt about it.

AN OLD ACQUAINTANCE RETURNS

Listen, World!

Love Isn't a Natural Habit.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

WE HUMANS have a cockeyed idea that love's a natural habit . . . one of those things that "just happen" without particular or prolonged effort on our part—like breathing, laughing, sleeping. And if it doesn't proceed as per schedule, something's wrong, probably with the Other Fellow.

Nothing could be further from the truth. Far from being natural, love is one of the most complicated and difficult habits to learn and retain. And an enormous amount of our mortal misery arises from our ignorance of this fact.

Some of our most fantastic myths center around Family Affection. It is a treasured tradition that all Mothers "love" their children; that all normal children return their devotion . . . and heaven help the rash soul who challenges this cherished notion. Yet daily we see pitiful proof that it's fallacious.

Indeed, it's doubtful if any human institution is more misused, or serves as a camouflage for more cussedness than this very love in which we put such faith.

In love's name, parents meddle, mislead, thwart, bully and exploit their children — and in love's name, children impose and deceive and make preposterous demands. Nor is this because Parents are a bunch of stupid or malicious Meanies . . . or children a Gang of Young Grafters. It all arises from our ignorance concerning love, its true nature and its proper expression.

We confuse love with reactions which have nothing whatever to do with it . . . which are, actually, simply a matter of chemistry. Practically all mammals pass through a period of possessive relationship toward their young . . . as their young, in turn, are for a time dependent upon them. But that is not love. Nor, by the same token, is Junior's spring-time frenzy the Great Passion. They are both Nature's expedient for reproducing and preserving the species. Or — all too frequently—a personal racket! But love is as far removed from these as the morning star is from a corn plaster.

Love is God's last and greatest gift to man . . . humanity's most civilized and most perilous adventure. It took man millions of years to learn how to strike a spark from flint . . . it will take him millions more to learn how to use the divine fire in his own heart., LOVE IS NOT A FEELING . . . IT IS A SACRED SERVICE. CALLING FOR THE UTMOST DISCIPLINE, INTELLIGENCE AND TACT.

No one can perform that service "intuitively." It must be learned, step by step, and maintained with a life-long struggle. For one does not always love easily or with delight. There are times when all our natural instincts, our human selfishness, laziness and cowardice fight furiously against such responsibility. But love must go on, and only a full appreciation of its worthwhileness can make us willing to carry it on.

Love must be taught . . . love must be learned . . . love must be exercised and preserved with infinite difficulty. Yet, despite these facts, we believe that any stupid clod can perform the job successfully.

We insist that man spend years in training before he can become a qualified plumber. We agree that a woman must spend as much or more time before she can rate as an aesthetic dancer. Yet we make no demands, ask no questions, of the person who undertakes the most delicate and dangerous of all commissions—Love.

What idiots we are! I wonder if God ever regrets the mud He spent upon our making!

Timely Editorial

Junk-Yard Derbies.

For the past few years an urgent demand has been made for barring from the highways obsolete motor cars which are a source of danger to their occupants and to other drivers. Progress has been made in this direction notably in the legislation providing for compulsory automobile insurance to the extent that motorists involved in accidents must meet the cost of the mishap and secure insurance before driving again.

At least one market for worn-out cars has been found in the multiplying "junk-yard derbies" held in various parts of the county in which the ancient jaloppies are raced on more or less improvised tracks for the amusement of a growing public of thrill-seekers.

As was to be expected there have been numerous casualties and several fatalities in connection with this dangerous type of sport-entertainment. Scarcely a week-end goes by without someone being injured and there is every possibility that if they are allowed to continue, the community may be appalled by a tragedy in which several lives, including those of poorly-safeguarded spectators may be lost.—Columbus Dispatch.

More Protection For Drug Users.

—By DR. CLENDENING

I UNDERSTAND an extension of the operation of some of the provisions of the new Federal Pure Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act has been granted until January, 1940.

On next New Year's Day then, the people of the United States will have re-enforced protection on products that they purchase largely on faith.

The new law is a substantial revision of the act of 1906. Its most striking feature is the inclusion of cosmetics. Hitherto cosmetics were manufactured and marketed without governmental supervision. That they could do harm was evidenced in the widely-publicized cases of blindness caused by eyelash beautifiers and poisoning of various degrees from various cosmetics.

Strong Opposition.

When this column first began to advocate the passage of a revised law, nearly the whole profession of pharmacists and drug manufacturers, as well as patent medicine vendors, was solidly against it. I was surprised to find that the most respectable and conscientious manufacturers were as much opposed to it as the cynically indifferent hawker of a dishonest nostrum. I was bombarded with protests from low and high.

I am happy, therefore, to be able to express the opinion that the present act is really a splendid law, much stronger, I fancy, than some of its opponents suspect.

To begin with, it extends the scope of protection not only to cosmetics, but to diagnostic drugs, therapeutic devices, fat reducers, vitalizing belts, contraceptives and other gadgets intended to alter the structure or function of the body.

Further Than Before.

The public health features go much further than anything we have ever had before. As a result of the elixir of sulfanilimide disaster, the manufacturer will no longer be able to toss a new drug onto the market without first testing it adequately to see that it is safe for use as prescribed in the labelling.

No drug product can go into interstate commerce until the secretary of agriculture is satisfied that it has been so tested.

Perhaps the casual citizen may suppose that such a provision is only rarely required. Note then that this is one provision that went into effect immediately on the signing of the bill, June 27, 1938. In the first year of enforcement over 1,2000 applications with respect to such new drugs were received, an average of four a working day. About half the applications were granted. Which will give some idea of what the situation must have been like before.

Bans Dangerous Drugs.

Another section that went into effect immediately bans drugs which may be dangerous when used as prescribed. During the year the department of agriculture seized 47 shipments of such products, mostly pain killers containing aminopyrine. Fifty-seven shipments of dangerous therapeutic devices have been seized.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The early days of this war are unfolding in New York like the closing pages of an Ernest Hemingway novel. In Hemingway novels people do a lot of walking around and indulge in a lot of spontaneous conversation.

The other night I climbed into an elevator and was on my way to the 20th floor of a hotel. On the way up I said to the operator, a man of about 50: "What do you think about the war?"

That was a mistake. He turned on me and began gesturing excitedly. "There will be no war. Germany will stop it. If England and France would let Germany alone there would be no trouble." . . . He said ten times this much in half the time it has taken you to read this little. He had me backed into a corner. I didn't know whether he would hit me or not.

Ten minutes later I came down in the elevator, unfortunately, with the same man, but I did not mention the war, or anything else. Outside I met a couple of people I knew with several I didn't know, arguing on a curb. It was Russia this, and France that, and Mr. Chamberlain the other.

Not a one of them but knew the exact tactics to pursue to win the war. Each of them knew exactly why one side or the other would lose.

A taxi driver, a total stranger, leaned out of his cab and yelled, "You're all nuts, and so is everybody nuts, me too," and drove on. His radio was blasting out a barrage of news reports from Warsaw.

IN THE book stores it is hard to get copies of books by the war correspondents — "Days of Our Years," or "Inside Asia," for instance. Although the books aren't there, the clerks can tell you how the war should be fought, and anything else that you want to know.

At dinner this evening, I met a young French officer who had dragged his uniform out of the trunk, and was on his way back to rejoin his regiment. He was a reservist, a lieutenant, and has been in this country four years with the exception of annual visits to get in his "service" periods.

During dinner he made one remark that lodged in my memory. "The French people," he said, "no longer think of the Germans in the same vein that the war is remembered. We feel sorry for the German people. But we shall soon be fighting them, and the fighting will be all the more terrible. We do not underestimate the strength or the courage of the Germans. They are great fighters. But in the end of course we and our allies will win."

LATER he departed for Canada, and soon will be on the high seas.

I would say that New Yorkers have clung more to their radios and read more newspapers in the last few weeks than in the last six months. But there is no suggestion of the surges of "feeling" that formerly characterized this, and other countries, in moments of extreme crisis.

The war here has the horrible fascination of a snake. It has broken down the vast, impersonal feeling that New York usually reserves for its individuals, giving everyone a talking point. As a rule strangers rarely address one another here. But now they fall on each other's necks and exclaim, "What do you think about the war?"

Ohio Anecdotes

A Worthy Enterprise.

Simon Wolf, Bavarian-born and Ohio-raised, was personally acquainted with every president from Abraham Lincoln until Calvin Coolidge, who was president when Wolf died in 1923.

Emigrating from Bavaria at the age of 12 to the United States, thence to Ohio, Wolf worked for his several uncles, then studied law. He began to practice at Mt. Vernon in 1861.

A year later Wolf moved to Washington, D. C., where he resided until his death.

When the persecution of the Jews in Rumania became acute, Wolf sought the aid of President Grant, who obtained relief for them. He also helped B'nai B'rith, a Jewish organization, raise funds to build the statue, "Religious Liberty," which was presented to Fairmount Park, Philadelphia.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—When you read about the high-powered things now being done in Washington, it's hard to believe that comedy runs very close to the surface. One of the president's most important moves—proclamation of a state of limited emergency—took place in a setting of pure farce.

The president, confronting a crowd of newsmen in his office, was on the point of announcing this momentous step—when suddenly he couldn't find the proclamation. It was like the bridegroom losing the ring.

After mussing around among the papers on his desk, the president set the tone of comedy by suggesting that "Frank Murphy must have run off with it." He ordered someone to pursue the attorney general, who had just left the room.

Then Steve Early began hunting on the president's desk. Murphy came back, pushing through the crowd of newsmen.

"Frank," called the president, "where's that copy of the proclamation you ran off with?"

Murphy searched in his papers, but protested innocence.

"Berle must have picked it up," said the president, and the assistant secretary of state was sent for. Meantime the president leaned over to rummage through his waste basket. With this crowning touch, the conference became a riot of laughter.

In mock reproof, the president shook a finger at the crowd and said, "That proclamation was here just three minutes ago. I warn you, everyone in the front row is suspect!"

The mysterious paper was finally brought over from the state department and the conference settled down to a discussion of the price of food.

Next Army Draft?

AT FIRST GLANCE, the man who is working up the next army draft, should we get into the war, looks dangerously Prussian. This is the job which General Hugh Johnson once had, and the man who holds it now is a husky major, with red hair that stands up straight on his head.

But Major Lewis B. Hershey is no Prussian. He believes repression can ruin a soldier. He believes in Sherman's army, whose soldiers used to sass the general if they found him asleep, and he sassed back at them.

"That was a democratic army," says Hershey, "not as efficient as a Prussianized machine, but it sticks to the end because it knows what it's fighting for."

This leads the major into a discussion of fear complexes. He would rather talk of soldier psychology than of the glass bowl and pellets he has in readiness for the giant lottery of the draft—when the numbers drawn will determine which mothers' sons shall go to war.

Ten million will be called first—all the men between 21 and 30, and from them, after "deferring" about seven million, three million will be taken for service. This should be enough to make a powerful army, but if it isn't, other age groups will be called until a total of 7,500,000 men are in uniform.

"Fear," says Hershey, "is what breaks a man's morale, and fear comes from not knowing what the objective is. In this country, the people make up their minds to do something, then the army takes over the job. Everybody knows the objective. It's a slow process—a democratic process—but it creates a strong morale.

"Of course, we don't pretend that young men want to be drafted. Nobody wants to get blown to pieces in a war. But the force that makes them go is not the military authority, it's the force of public opinion. A young man can't dodge without losing face in the community."

If Hershey has his way, there will be no draft, because there will be no war, for America. "I'm a Hoosier and an isolationist," he says, "and I believe we should keep out of other people's troubles. But if we do have to get in—"

The upstanding red hair, in a quick shake, suggests that America's democratic army will be unbeatable.

German Refugees.

WHAT some Germans think of Hitler's policies at home may be gathered from the fact that 302,000 Germans are on the waiting list to migrate to the United States. These people, some still in Germany, others scattered all over Europe, are waiting hopefully, patiently for their names to move up on the list, to get the coveted visa and sail to the Statue of Liberty.

For some of them the waiting period will be 12 years. The annual quota for German immigration is 27,370, or about one-twelfth of the 302,000 who are formally registered on U. S. books abroad.

This is a new situation. Two years ago any healthy German could be admitted to the United States without delay. For years the German quota has been unfilled. People didn't want to come here.

But with the Hitler anschluss with Austria in March 1938, Germans—many of them Jews, many also Catholics—began to storm U. S. consulates in Central Europe, eager to leave the expanding Fatherland.

In the fiscal year 1938-39 the Germans filled their quota for the first time. Now they wish the quotas could be retroactive, so they could take up the slack of those years when Uncle Sam had his arms open. But now there is a bill on the senate calendar to suspend all immigration quotas.

Even worse than the German situation is the Hungarian, with a quota of only 800 a year. The number of Hungarians who have applied for admission to the United States is 30,000, enough to fill their quota for the next 37 years.

Note—Most disappointed are 650 Germans in London, who had the land of liberty almost within their grasp. A new ruling closes the gate to them for at least two weeks, until crowded ships can take care of returning Americans.

Wealth of Goldenrod

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE COUNTRYSIDE is yellow with goldenrod. For three weeks I have watched for the hint of their yellow heads. During the early summer they are not often recognized because they have the hardy green of all other plants. But when August saps the marrow from the fields and the goldenrod is vigorous and stands straight and tall, a pillar of green leaves, among the drab withered grass and smaller weeds of wayside places.

In lowland where the water table is high, I walked through clumps of goldenrod so tall that the yellow clusters arched above my head. The woody stalks were tough and wiry and the lancelike leaves, curving toward the light, were a soft dark green even beyond the branching forks. They grew so dense, in places along the highway, that passing cars would break the leaning plants.

One lowland meadow, untilled this year, was a solid mass of bloom. The rippling field of yellow, bending in the wind, was a showy and unusual sight. The plant is no respecter of places, but grows wherever the plow and cultivator are not used too vigorously. Its odor seems rude and savage, at first, sans delicacy and culture. Yet the strength and robustness of its fragrance grows upon the one who loves its beauty, and is remembered long after autumn days are past.

This strong manly stalk is the home of the mantis family, also of several insects that by stinging the tender upper portions of the stem form large symmetrical enlargements within which are the protected eggs. When winter comes, these tender galls are first to disintegrate, and let their freight escape upon the ground.

The showy blooms have nectar which the yellow jackets and the common wasp seek with frantic eagerness. The broad winged butterfly perches upon its undulating top and the bumblebee is a regular visitor. A long black bug camps within its raceme-like leaves. Of all the autumn flowers that flaunt themselves along the dusty borders of the fields, no other tribe is scattered so widely, or gives a pleasanter, more cheerful coloring to our countryside.

WRITER SEES POWERS SEEK BALKANS' AID

Calls France's Greatest War Strategist 'Salesman' for British, French Aims.

By J. C. OESTREICHER
(INS Foreign Editor)

The cloak of censorship thrown over military and diplomatic developments in Europe remained as impenetrable as ever today. But a brief dispatch from Paris gave an interesting hint of what the British and the French may be trying to do to fullfil effectively their pledge of crushing Hitlerism so that it can never rise again.

The dispatch reported that General Maxim Weygand, who iis ranked as one of the greatest military strategists of the twentieth century, has bowed his way out of Turkey after solidifying French friendship there, and is now heading for Bucharest to push the allied cause in Rumania.

The significance of this report, if true, cannot be overestimated.

Among other things it might help to explain why the "big push" so long awaited on the Franco-German frontier, has been so long in coming.

A glance at the map will show that Turkey, Bulgaria and Rumania have among them a stranglehold on the Black Sea. Turkey herself is historic mistress of the Dardanelles, the only waterway linking the otherwise landlocked Black Sea with the Mediterrancan.

Much capital is being made in Paris of the fact that Weygand was "well received" in Turkey. Great emphasis is being placed on the fact that Turkey's present neutrality is benevolently inclined toward the allies. When the new Turkish ambassador was received by President Albert Lebrun in the French capital a few days ago, the republic turned out a military and diplomatic display that proved to be an eye-blinder.

Hold Important Seas.

It is obvious that the French, with Britain's approval and encouragement, are currying Turkish favor not only because Turkey has a large and well-trained army but because it has the Dardanelles.

And Rumania has the Black Sea.

Ever since this war started, the French and British have been jockeying for a battleground. They are not reconciled to the fact that hostilities are to be confined to the western front alone. One has only to consider the advantages of a southern naval thrust as well to understand why General Weygand, a seemingly unspareable strategist, has been detached from Mez and Strasbourg and sent into the Balkans as a traveling salesman for war.

Spanish and Italian neutrality has led the allies to hope and even believe that the straights of Gibraltar will remain free, unmenaced by Spanish guns high on the cliffs of Spanish Morocco or by Italian sub-sea boats deep in the blue waters of the Mediterannean.

ASK AGREEMENT

Truck Drivers Seek Closed Shop From Operators.

Refused a signed working agreement with their employers, the Ohio Highway Driver's council, consisting of long distance truck drivers, opened negotiations today with 30 Richland county long distance haulers.

The first meeting held Tuesday night at the Mansfield-Leland hotel was attended by officials of local 40 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers, an A. F. of L. affiliate, and a committee representing the Richland county haulers.

The union asked for a closed shop, a minimum hourly wage of 75 cents and an arbitration condition which allow officials of the state council to select its own representatives to settle any differences between the employers and employes.

Union officials said they "got nowhere" at the meeting but that negotiations remained open and that another session probably would be held soon.

Women To 'Crash' 40 And 8 Party 1st Time Tonight

For the first time since its organization 18 years ago, women will "crash" a 40 and 8 party tonight at the American Legion home.

The organization, which is the "fun group" of the Legion, was organized in 1921 on a strictly "no femmes" basis—a fact which always secretly "burned" the wives, according to Chef de Guerre Herbert Gibbs.

So tonight's affair is to be an "out of the doghouse" party, with a chicken dinner and entertainment. Announcements of the party, which went out several days ago, carried a picture of a man in the doghouse, with Towser disgustedly waiting on the outside, and the inscription, "You can have it back after Thursday."

The committee which arranged this precendent-breaking party is Earl Saltzgabor, chairman; John Grabler and Fred Roth.

HOST TO 2,000 AT GRID OPENER

J. A. C. to Stage Second 'Grade School Day' Saturday.

The second annual "Grade School Day" sponsored by the Junior Association of Commerce will be staged at Stadium Field Saturday afternoon when the Mansfield high school football team opens its session with Akron West.

Jack Pealer, head of the association's committee, announced that 2,000 elementary school pupils are expected to attend the game as guests. He said the students will be seated in the stands on the east side of the field and requested that they enter the stadium at the southeast corner.

as it does to these principles, reserves all rights of the United States and its nationals under international law and will adopt such measures as may seem most practical and prudent when those rights are violated by any of the belligerents."

Hull's declaration of policy came in the wake of the stopping and search of American shipping by both Great Britain and Germany. Several American ships have been forced to put into British ports to be searched for contraband.

Last week, an American steamship was halted on the high seas by a German submarine, detained for three hours and throughly searched before being permitted to continue on its way back to the United States.

In view of these incidents, and the announcement by both the British and German governments that neutral shipping would be stopped and searched for contraband, Hull sought to make a plain statement of present American policy.

GUARD RESIGNS AFTER ESCAPES

O. S. R. Employe in Charge of Gang From Which 4 Fled Submits Resignation.

Glenn L. Hedges, 44, guard at the Ohio State reformatory, who was detailed to guard a gang from which four trusties escaped Tuesday, resigned today.

Hedges submitted his resignation to Supt. Arthur Glattke yesterday following a report on the escape.

Glattke declined to comment other than to say that he had accepted the resignation.

Hedges, it was learned, had been assigned to watch over inmates working on the administration building outside the walls but was absent at the time the four fled during a rainstorm.

He had been a guard at the institution since July 1 when he was given a provisional appointment.

The fugitives, still at large today were Clark Icenhauer, Summit county; Harley Keller, Montgomery county; John Faught, Franklin county, and Jack Turner, Franklin county.

VISITS SCHOOLS

'Wizard of Oz' Phaeton and Ponies Tour City.

Six schools were visited yesterday by the miniature phaeton and ponies from Hollywood which were used in the technicolor picture "The Wizard of Oz," with Miss Miriam Hoffman, Shiloh, riding in it in the original costume worn by Judy Garland as Dorothy in the film.

The party, in charge of Capt. Volney Phifer of Hollywood, who is taking the outfit on a tour of the United States, visited Brinkerhoff, Carpenter, West Fifth street, Western avenue, Mansfield Senior high and John Simpson junior high schools on the tour about the city.

Miriam, who is 15, was the only child chosen through the contest conducted by the Ohio. All others who sent in their heights and weights and ages were too small to wear the costumes. When the parade got under way the Hollywood costumes were worn by theater ushers. Dick Skelly wore the Coward Lion's costume; Robert Hawley was the Wizard, William Condon was the Scarecrow; and Don Speakman was the Tin Woodman

MRS. FINK FOND OF SLAIN BABY, NURSE ASSERTS

Testifies Mother Accused of Slaying Her Child Caressed Son at Hospital.

(By Associated Press)

FREMONT — Miss Margaret Sheely, a nurse, testified today as a defense witness at the trial of Velma Baker Fink that the 22-year-old divorcee "was fond of the baby" for whose death she is charged with first degree murder.

Miss Sheely, Fremont Memorial hospital night nurse, one of four defense witnesses who took the stand this morning, said she attended Mrs. Fink after the Caesarian birth and her son, Haldon.

The body of the 10-week-old child was found in Green creek, between Clyde and Fremont, last June 14.

The mother frequently caressed her son at the hospital, Miss Sheely said. The nurse said she called at the Baker home in Clyde the morning Baby Haldon was slain and that the mother muttered fitfully in her sleep. She quoted Mrs. Fink as saying, "he has been sleeping—he'll wake up and I'll give him his bottle." The nurse said the mother once pointed to her head and said, "something hurts."

Mrs. Fink, who confessed to Sheriff H. L. Myers and Prosecutor A. L. Hyzer that she drove to Green creek the night of June 13 and dropped the baby from a bridge, entered pleas of innocent and innocent by reason of insanity when arraigned on the murder charge.

J. W. Fausey, Clyde superintendent of schools, testified Mrs. Fink required six years to complete the four-year Clyde high school course.

Other defense witnesses were William Clem, Fremont salesman, a friend of Mrs. Fink's family, and Edward Leidy, Clyde confectioner by whom the defendant was employed prior to her marriage to Ervin Fink, Fremont apprentice machinist.

Mrs. Fink, wearing a simple black dress, wept frequently during testimony. She was comforted by her elderly father, Oren Baker, Clyde garage operator.

The state closed its case yesterday after calling 10 witnesses, including four who testified to a confession made by the mother on June 17, four days after the slaying.

SETS UP 3 WAR RELIEF GROUPS

Red Cross Gets Ready to Call Knitters to Make Garments for European Nations.

Within a week or so, Mansfield's best knitters will probably be doing their "knit ten, perl two" for the soldiers in the European war.

Acting on the suggestion from national headquarters that local chapters begin work on knitted garments and women's and children's clothing, the Richland county chapter yesterday set up three war relief committees. Mrs. Gertrude English, chapter secretary, said that while no campaign for funds would be conducted, voluntary contributions would be accepted and used to purchase materials for making garments.

The following relief committee heads were named: Mrs. Leopold Adams for Mansfield, Mrs. V. E. Vining for the county's townships, and Mrs. C. C. Fish for Shelby. They will be assisted by Mrs. W. J. Bishop, chairman of the Junior Red Cross; Miss Lucille Lorow, Mansfield teacher, and Mrs. Lewis Patterson, Shelby, and officers of the executive board.

All garments prepared must be new, national headquarters has announced, and must be made according to Red Cross specifications and will be subject to Red Cross inspection.

The executive board named Roy Spetka, principal at Bushnell school, to fil the unexpired term of W. J. Locke as chairman. Locke, Republican candidate for mayor, resigned several months ago. Spetka served for two years as chairman before Locke's term began.

BRITISH FREIGHTER'S CAPTAIN SEES TORPEDO SINK HIS BOAT

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—A captain who sat in a lifeboat and watched his ship torpedoed said today that a German submarine commander called him aboard the U-boat and courteously gave him four loaves of bread.

He was Capt. Thomas Georgeson of the British freighter Winkleigh whose boat was sunk on Sept. 8 and who reached port today on the Holland-America liner Statendam with 36 members of his crew.

The submarine commander, according to Georgeson, was worried over whether the crew of the Winkleigh would have enough food to hold out for a long journey in lifeboats.

The Winkleigh was the second ship that Georgeson has lost to a submarine. He said that in 1917 he was master of the freighter Meldon which was torpedoed off the west coast of Scotland.

The Winkleigh was out of New Westminster, near Vancouver, B. C., and had touched at Kingston, Jamaica, en route to Great Britain with a cargo of wheat and lumber.

The submarine hoisted a flag signal, but I couldn't read it," Georgeson said. "Then they fired a shot over us. We knew what that meant and we took to the boats. We didn't have time to get clothing or anything. A passenger on the Statendam gave me this suit I'm wearing. Otherwise, I would have had nothing at all."

Georgeson and the crew went into two lifeboats that were stocked with food and water and rigged with sails. They pulled away from the Winkleigh and then the submarine came along side the lifeboats.

"I went aboard the submarine," Georgeson said, "and the captain, who seemed nice enough, ordered me to give him some of the ship's papers. I did that and then he asked me if we had enough food to reach land. I told him we had but he insisted that we take the bread."

Georgeson went back to the lifeboats and they went several hundred yards away. Then they sat and watched the submarine send a torpedo into the Winkleigh. It was a direct hit and the Winkleigh sank in a few minutes.

Commander G. J. Barendse of the Stattendam said he received an SOS from the Winkleigh at 7:13 a. m. of Sept. 8. It gave the ship's position and added that it was about to be torpedoed.

"I changed my course and put on full speed," Barendse said. "We went 125 miles south of our course to pick up the Winkleigh's boats.

REFUGEES TELL OF BOMBINGS

German Planes, Machine Guns Attack Them; Lwow Doomed, Reports Indicate.

ly retreating Polish army is able to stem the German advance, the city of Lwow with 316,000 population, is doomed.

Bombed from the air for 14 days and battered by artillery during the past week, Lwow is a giant torch. A red glow, cast over the city by flames from burning oil refineries, makes a grim mockery of air raid precautions.

Other fires are burning in many sections of the city. Shattered aqueducts have emptied the reservoir from which Lwow draws its water supply and efforts to quench the flames with sand are pitifully ineffectual.

An acute food shortage, the danger of plague and the horror of bombing attacks have reduced the remaining residents to a state of panic. Over all hovers the fear that the Germans may enter the city at any moment.

The panic is particularly acute among the Jewish community, which numbers approximately 100,000. In shell-scarred synagogues, the Jews began their new year celebration by offering up prayers for rain which they hoped might halt the march of the German army.

All railroad junction terminals in the city have been wrecked by bombs, disrupting train travel. As fast as the Poles can repair vital rail lines they are destroyed by German bombers.

Many passenger trains derailed by the bombs lie along the tracks.

Not only military caravans but private cars have been machine-gunned from the air as well as bombed. I saw frequently along the highways automobiles and peasant carts whose occupants had been killed by machine-gun fire.

Military headquarters in Lwow have been established in low wooden buildings in the center of the city on the theory the Germans might consider them not worth bombing.

Until Monday no anti-aircraft guns were available here to combat the air raids. When they arrived they were manned by inexperienced crews which were unable to score hits even when the enemy planes flew over so low I could almost count the rivets in their fuselages.

Most of the Polish air force—or what remains of it—has been stationed near the Rumanian frontier in the hope of fighting off German attempts to smash Poland's lifeline railway bringing oil and other supplies from Rumania.

But it is a good bet that German fliers could spot the Polish planes for bomb attacks and before you read this that may have happened.

VIEWS WARSAW AS 'MARTYR' TO POLES' DEFENSE

Craige Sees Capital Providing Delay Necessary for Poland to Reorganize Forces.

By CAPTAIN JOHN H. CRAIGE,
(U. S. Marine Corps, Retired)
Written Expressly for the International News Service

NEW YORK—One week from the day Nazi motorized units first entered its outskirts, Warsaw still holds out. It has been bombed from the air many times and shelled by artillery. Tanks have rumbled through its streets and the men of Hitler's infantry have thrown themselves against its barricades, but still its resistance is unbroken.

As Madrid proved in its time, so Warsaw is proving that a modern city is a desperately hard nut for a military force to crack. That is especially so when its citizens are armed and have made up their minds to hold out or die.

In spite of the continuous German investment, one railroad running from west ot east is reported still open and carrying Polish troops out of the trap of the Poznan salient. According to Polish reports, nearly a dozen divisions or a total of more than 150,000 men have made their escape over it to rejoin the main polish forces to the east of the capital. If this be true, Warsaw's martyrdom may have provided the delay and protection necessary for the beginning of a reorganization of the Polish forces.

ON FRENCH FRONT

Reports from the western front chronicle the fact that the French have virtually encircled the German city of Saarbrucken. This is an industrial town of some importance and a worth-while prize of the allies' first offensive effort.

Standing near the confluence of the Saar and Moselle rivers, Saarbrucken lies in the biggest military "gap" between France and Germany and has been often taken and re-taken in the wars between the two. The feet of Roman Legions echoed on its streets when Julius Caesar defeated Ariovistus, the German chief who had invaded Gaul. Napoleon knew it well and so did Marshal Saxe. Area gained by the French up to yesterday afternoon totalled a little more than the square-mileage of the borough of Brooklyn.

WAR COUNCIL IMPORTANT

An event of great importance to the Franco-British prosecution of the war was the visit of Prime Minister Chamberlain and Lord Chatfield, minister for the coordination of defense to Paris to attend the first meeting of the supreme war council of the allied nations.

In the last war, the allies did not set up a supreme war council until 1917, after nearly three years had passed.

Had such a body been instituted sooner, early events of the war might have been different and its duration shorter.

Among the subjects on the Agenda of this first supreme council session was that of giving speedy aid to Poland. Methods of giving aid were, of course, not specified, but we can be reasonably certain that the frequently discussed Black Sea expeditionary force was given consideration.

KEEPS MOTORS SWEET

Pure Oil's New Solvenized* TUNE-UP PLAN

2 EASY STEPS BRING AMAZING RESULTS. MORE MILES PER GALLON AND BETTER PERFORMANCE WHEN EXCESS CARBON GOES! PROVED BY MOTORISTS IN 25 STATES

1 SOLVENIZED TUNE-UP TREATMENT

Exclusive chemical solvent (Purosol—patent applied for) is run through your motor. Gummy carbon binder is dissolved and excess carbon deposits are flushed out of the exhaust before your very eyes.

The beneficial effects on mechanically sound motors—faster pick-up, less carbon knock, increased mileage—are almost immediate—most noticeable within 15 to 50 miles after treatment. May reveal hidden defects which need the attention of a garage man or mechanic.

$1 COST ONLY

Money back if not satisfied—

YOU'RE THE SOLE JUDGE!

2 SOLVENIZED TUNE-UP GASOLINE

After treatment, put your car on a steady diet of Solvenized Pure-Pep. This will tend to prevent additional carbon deposits.

This new gasoline, especially blended with just the right amount of Purosol ingredients, tends to eliminate excess carbon already present and retards carbon formation. Also has a lubricating action on valves and piston rings and a cleansing effect on the whole fuel system. Gives more miles per gallon, quicker starting, better acceleration.

Solvenized gasoline is really a "premium quality" motor fuel.

GDYNIA FALLS AS NAZIS PUSH ON IN POLAND

Warsaw Under German Fire on All Sides, Lublin Cut Off From Lwow, Berlin Says.

alleged to have reported finding "a large part of the civilian population was armed."

A communique which told of advances in Poland said 66,000 prisoners had been captured and showed the eastern forces to be centering on three main maneuvers:

1. Encircling Warsaw completely;

2. Cutting off Lublin from Lwow to prevent such government officials as may still be in Lublin from reaching the south; and

3. Advancing with east Prussian divisions upon Brzesc (Brest-Litovsk) 110 miles east of Warsaw.

Of operations on the western front the communique said that "stronger French forces than hitherto" advanced toward German outposts between Saarbruecken and Hornback, but were "stopped by mine fields and German defense fire."

Call Roosevelt 'Unfair.'

A commentary which usually presents the German foreign office opinion today attributed to President Roosevelt, in his interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine, an attitude "unfair and unchivalrous, to say nothing of being unneutral."

At the same time observers saw in publication of a German contraband law a warning to the world that German submarines and sea raiders would do their utmost legitimately to prevent war materials and food from reaching Britain and France.

The comment on President Roosevelt's attitude appeared in Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz as part of the German reaction to Canada's declaration of war last Sunday by which the Dominion threw her resources to the side of Great Britain against Germany. Canada's declaration, it said, placed the president in an "awkward" position.

As for the Polish campaign, the German army announced it was closing its ring around Warsaw and shoving closer to Lwow and Lublin but reported little of importance on the western front facing France.

The only disquieting note in the army communiques from Poland were occasional references to "unfavorable weather." Thoughtful Germans were wondering whether rains at last were going to soften Poland's notoriously bad roads and bog down the motorized equipment which had enabled the Germans to make their swift thrusts.

The high command discounted this prospect, a spokesman saying, "no matter what the weather we advance."

Fortress Surrounded.

Those advances yesterday, according to German announcements, effected virtual encirclement of Warsaw, took motorized units far along the road to Lwow in the direction of the Rumanian border and enabled northern forces to surround the Polish fortress at Modlin, at the confluence of the Narew and Vistula rivers.

Bitter warfare at sea seemed in prospect. Officials emphasized, however, that there was to be no "unrestricted submarine campaign."

Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz referred to President Roosevelt's Tuesday press conference in which he made plain that he interprets the Monroe Doctrine to mean the United States should protect by force if necessary all the Americas, including Canada.

Korrespondenz also referred to the president's Kingston, Ontario, speech of last year in which he said the United States would not "stand idly by" if Canada were threatened.

The commentary observed that Mr. Roosevelt, in effect, was saying that Canada may attack a European power but that power may not strike back at Canada. It held such an attitude to be "unfair and unchivalrous, to say nothing of being unneutral."

Germany has no interest in changing the sovereignty of any American territory, "most certainly not to its own benefit," Korrespondenz declared. It said the only two occasions German troops ever fought in the western hemisphere were to help the Canadians throw off French rule and to help Washington throw off British despotism.

FLOODS STARVE CHINESE HORDES

Crops Destroyed, Millions Face Suffering In Hopeh Province.

SHANGHAI —(AP)— Foreign relief authorities estimated today 25,000,000 Chinese face starvation and other suffering this winter from floods in Hopeh province and the Yellow river basin and drought in Shantung province.

Fall crops in these areas were said to be completely destroyed. American religious and Red Cross relief funds are nearly exhausted.

The flood crest dropped two feet but most of Tientsin was still under water. The floods extend around the city within a radius of about 50 miles.

HITS REPEAL OF ARMS EMBARGO

Weisman Tells Bankers Here Arms Shipment Will Draw U. S. Into Conflict.

The other speaker at the banquet was P. R. Peters, Lancaster, president of the Ohio Bankers' association, who told the largest group ever to assemble here for a district meeting that "the banks of Ohio are in excellent condition."

He said business concerns during the first six months of 1939 used only about 30 per cent of the credit available at their banks, citing figures which showed that 800,000 loans involving more than $1,000,000,000 had been made in the state in that period.

D. M. Auch, Columbus, secretary of the Ohio Bankers' association, warned the bankers of the dangers of the Bigelow pension plan which he predicted would appear on the ballot at the November election.

"It means absolute bankruptcy for the state of Ohio if proposed taxes under the plan are assessed to defray the cost of this pension system," he said.

He stated that estimates show the plan would cost $380,000,000 annually while income from proposed taxes to defray the expense amounted to only $60,000,000 yearly.

During the afternoon business session D. J. Needham, Washington, D. C., general counsel for the American Bankers' association, spoke to the group on "New Legislation Affecting Banking." Frank Carpenter, Norwalk, director of the Citizens Banking company, led a round table discussion on banking problems.

John E. Wise, president of the Willard United Bank and chairman of Group Six, presided at the election of officers, all of which were renamed for another year.

Besides Wise they include Paul M. Eliot, secretary-treasurer of the Farmers Savings and Trust company, Mansfield, vice chairman, and Paul A. Warner vice president of the Knox County Savings bank, Mt. Vernon, secretary-treasurer.

Among the guests present were Samuel H. Squire, state superintendent of banks, and Novelist Louis Bromfield.

Last night marked the 32nd annual meeting of the state association which was organized in Mansfield in 1907. The association has since been divided into district groups. The counties represented in Group Six include Ashland, Crawford, Erie, Huron, Knox, Marion, Morrow, Richland and Wyandot.

Britain Seizes Phosphate Cargo On Way To Nazis

LONDON—(U.P.)—Great Britain, tightening its new "contraband control," has seized 5,900 tons of phosphate aboard the American steamer Warrior of Mobile, it was disclosed today.

Shortly before this information became public it was disclosed that the British had begun examination of American as well as other neutral vessels which might be taking cargoes to Germany.

Notice of the phosphate seizure was headed "in prize" and stated that the cargo of 69 to 70 per cent Florida pebble phosphate from the Warrior was now on barges at Purfleet and would be sold at public auction under order of the marshal of the admiralty, subject to the usual government restrictions regarding exports.

(Lloyd's register lists the Warrior as a 7,551-ton steamship built in 1920, owned by the Waterman Steamship Corporation and registered out of Mobile, Ala.

The British "contraband control" is the 1939 version of the 1914-1918 war blockade which helped to bring Germany to her knees.

SOVIET WORRIES BERLIN, LONDON

Mobilization to Full Army Strength Causes Concern to Warring Nations.

British and French governments anxiety because none knows Russia's intentions, it was learned today.

Reports emanating from Moscow indicate that Russia is mobilizing on a full war time basis and it was estimated here that it now had at least 4,000,000 men under arms.

The German government was reported to be surprised at the extent of the Russian mobilization, particularly as regards the troops disposition. Russia is massing men not alone on the Polish frontier but along Russia's entire frontier from Finland to Rumania.

Apparently the Germans are no more cognizant than the Allies of the reasons for these important measures.

Military men speculate whether Russia is disquieted at the imminent prospect of German forces reaching the Russian frontier at the southeast corner of Poland.

100 Miles From Border.

The Germans' sudden drive to the vicinity of Lwow (Lemberg) brought them within about 100 miles of the Russian frontier. This thrust with heavy armored and motorized columns was aimed at cutting the Poles off from access to Rumania, at outflanking the Poles on the Bug river line and at menacing Poland's remaining oil fields towards the Carpathians.

Perhaps also the Germans foresee that their arrival on the Rumanian frontier would enable them to exert pressure on Rumania to increase its oil supplies to Germany.

Uneasiness manifested in Nazi circles regarding the Russian large scale mobilization seems to indicate that the Nazis are not too certain regarding Stalin's intentions. Nor are the French and British governments.

Reds Accuse Poles of 'Oppression.'

MOSCOW —(CNS)— A violent press campaign accusing Poland of oppressing her minorities, including 11,000,000 Russians within the Ukraine and White Russian Republic, was launched by the Communistic party newspaper Pravda today.

"The Polish ruling classes," Pravda said, "have done everything possible to aggravate their relations with national minorities and bring them into a state of extreme tension."

Declaring that Poland had been brought to the verge of bankruptcy by the inner weaknesses and contradictions of the multinational Polish state itself, Pravda said:

"The population of western Ukraine and the White Russian Republics have been converted into colonies where the people are deprived of their rights, and subjected to harsh, unscrupulous exploitation by Polish landlords.

"The life of the peoples inhabiting Poland is based upon oppression and inequality. Thus national minorities cannot be expected to become a strong military force. In this lies the root of the weakness of the Polish state and the innercause of its military defeat."

FRANCE READY TO CLOSE IN ON SAAR CAPITAL

to Saarbruecken from the French positions.

Advancing French troops which have been feeling their way slowly eastward reported forces from both sides were obliged to fall back at times during both infantry and artillery actions.

Heavy fighting was reported near Hornbach as the French troops pushed eastward in an attempted encircling movement.

Rain hampered operations along the 100-mile front between the Moselle and Rhine rivers, but military dispatches spoke of "substantial" gains.

Near French Border.

Saarbruecken is located midway on the front not far from the French border.

The French government declared officially that there already are "several hundred thousand" British troops now in France. Officials said, however, that the British had not yet engaged in action, pointing out that it would take some time to concentrate supplies and dispose of the units along the front.

French officials contrasted the appearance of the new troops with what they described as "the handful of heroes" who were thrown into the breach in the early days of the World war in an effort to stem the German advance from Belgium.

(A dispatch from Algeciras, Spain, reported 10 English troop transports had passed Gibraltar en route to France. Two British ships stopped at Gibraltar, one to disembark several thousand soldiers to reinforce the garrison and the other to unload war supplies.)

Units of the British army were observed moving toward the front. There was little of the public rejoicing that greeted the arrival of the British in 1914, and French peasants, stolidly watching the brown clad columns moving through their villages, seemed to take the coming of their allies for granted.

Reports of fighting in the Saar basin said the advance had almost removed the French frontier town of Sarreguemines from the range of German artillery.

The dispatches said French artillery had caused the German army to start removal of its Saar headquarters from Saarbruecken.

The latest advances were said to have been accompanied by the heaviest aerial fighting on the western front todate. Dogfights over the lines, French sources said, resulted in destruction of three German planes and "one or two" French.

See Nazis Superior.

(Swiss observers, watching the progress of the fighting from across the border, said the Germans appeared to have demonstrated marked superiority in artillery mobility.

(On the other hand, these observers said, French machine gunners had proved more effective than the Nazis. The heavy fixed guns in the Maginot line, they declared, also had proved superior to the guns installed on the Siegfried line.

(Alterations in the Maginot fortresses while the Siegfried fortifications were being constructed, the Swiss observers said, had given French advance posts a firing power which in some spots overmatched the German.)

There were reports that General Maxine Weygand, commander of the French forces in the near east, was en route to Poland to assist in the Polish defense. A conflicting report, however, said that he had left Ankara, Turkey, by plane and was returning to Beirut, Lebanon.

PICTURES FIGHT OF MORMONS TO CONQUER SOIL

Author Writes With Pride of Ancestors in 'Children of God,' Fiction Leader.

A Mormon writes with understanding and loyalty of his own people and their beginnings in the hard soil of Utah is one of the new fiction books at the Public library this week, while a second interesting addition is MacKinley Kantor's new novel dealing with the men of the Civil war. His LONG REMEMBER of several years ago still ranks as an outstanding account of the battle of Gettysburg.

CHILDREN OF GOD by Vardis Fisher pictures the fighting Mormons who settled the stony, grudging soil of Utah and Idaho. The author writes with hot pride of his Mormon ancestors. He describes the sheer joy of adventure and discovery which filled the hearts of these people in their great migrations. His book shows a loyalty to the Mormons, without a real acceptance of their beliefs.

VALEDICTORY by MacKinley Kantor is an appealing story of a Civil war veteran, Ty Morley, who is finishing the last day of his employment as janitor in Shelldrake high school. On graduation evening he remembers the graduating class as timid first-graders, and their grandfathers, his G. A. R. comrades.

THE FAR DOWN by Elizabeth Corbett is a story of two sisters utterly different in their characteristics and ambitions, who guided a large, impecunious Irish family through all the trials of small-town life in America.

Other Fiction:

MEDALS, Pirandello.

AFFAIR OF THE BLACK SOMBRERO, Knight.

FEUD AT SILVER BEND, Grinstead.

OWNLEY INN, Lincoln and Lincoln.

GUATEMALA PROFILE, written and illustrated by Addison Burbank, records on artist's impressions of Guatemala. His descriptions of the life of the present day Maya Indians are colorful and sympathetic. Spending 13 months in the country, roaming over its mountains and through its towns and villages, gave him an abundance of experiences which delight of the reader.

THE OLD CENTURY AND SEVEN MORE YEARS by Siegfried Sasso is an account of the first 21 years of the poet's life. For Sassoo it was a happy time, in the country house in Kent and later in private schools and Cambridge, though he was unable to succeed at either cricket or school studies.

WITH MALICE TOWARD ALL by Irving Tressler is a hilarious account of an automobile trip through the southern United States. His comments on the balky motor of his auto, the tourist homes in which he and his wife stayed, and the sights they saw will appeal to all who have traveled and amuse those who have not.

'MISS AMERICA' PREFERS FIVE CHILDREN INSTEAD OF MOVIES

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—"Miss America" doesn't care about going into the movies, she wants five children instead.

Winner of the 1939 Atlantic City contest, pretty Miss Patricia Mary Donnelly of Detroit has little enthusiasm for the screen test she'll take.

"It might be nice to be in the movies," she declared today. "But I'm not making any plans about it and there are a lot of other things I'd rather do."

The five children, which she hopes to name Michael, Terry, Willo, Laurie and Shane, are her top ambition but there are other things she hopes to do first.

"I'm only 19 and that's too young to marry," she said. "Besides I'll have to learn to cook first. Right now I want to model, sing with a band or go on the stage."

The modelling job is already awaiting her as she has signed a $2,000 contract with a hat firm to pose in "Miss America" hats.

"I'm going to use half of that money to pay for my mother's operation and save as much of the rest as I can," she said.

She was crowned "Miss America" Saturday night, after winning a contest she hadn't planned to enter.

"Friends talked me into it, then I backed out and was talked back in it again," she said. "I won the Michigan contest first but bought a round trip ticket to Atlantic City. I guess I'll have to cash it in."

She was a model in Detroit before entering the contest . . . a tall, brown-haired, brown-eyed beauty.

"I'm still up in the air over the suddenness of it all," she said.

Seize Arsenal, Narcotics and Liquor at Prison Farm

GUARDS MAKE DISCOVERIES IN LONDON RAIDS

Sherwood Reveals Contraband Found Buried in Yard and in Dormitories.

Seizure of a small arsenal, narcotics and liquor in recent raids at the London prison farm, was disclosed today by State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood, United Press dispatches from Columbus said.

Associated Press dispatches, however, described the find as "two guns, eight to 10 bottles of whisky and a small quantity of narcotics." Several convicts were found to be carrying "crudely fashioned" knives, the Associated Press report said.

Guards, directed by W. F. Amrine, who became acting prison farm superintendent on Sept. 5, discovered a sawed-off shotgun, a .32 calibre revolver and a "peck of knives" in their investigations, Sherwood said.

Amrine took the place of Thomas C. Jenkins, former Mansfielder, who was given a three-month leave of absence from his position as superintendent. Jenkins had been ill for some time, and during his illness, charges had been made of bad conditions at the farm.

After Jenkins had been ordered by Sherwood to "clean up" conditions, a number of escapes from the unwalled institution occurred, trusties walking away under the shelter of high corn stalks in the institution fields.

Amrine told the welfare director by telephone today that subsequent searches have netted "an enormous amount of additional contraband" at the farm which houses 1,500 "honor" prisoners.

Find Supply of Shells.

The shotgun, with sawed-off barrell and butt, was buried in the prison yard wrapped in a (Dayton) newspaper dated June 13. A supply of shotgun shells also had been cached in the yard, guards discovered.

The loaded revolver, with several rounds of ammunition, most of the knives, narcotics pills and intoxicating liquor were discovered in the prison dormitory.

Tips which led to the contraband findings came from both "within and outside" the farm, according to Sherwood.

He said that prisoners at the farm were now being searched before and after they receive visitors. Some visitors also will be searched from now on, he added.

Sherwood said there was no definite information of how or when the firearms and other contraband were smuggled into their hiding places.

Fourteen prisoners have escaped from the prison farm in recent weeks.

Records showed that prisoners sentenced to life terms on murder charges and other so-called "big league" criminals had been transferred to the unwalled and but lightly guarded prison farm, intended for prisoners with good records.

Identifies Youth Held In Columbus As O.S.R. Fugitive

A fugitive warrant was issued by Supt. Arthur L. Glattke of the Ohio State reformatory today for a 20-year-old youth identified as an escaped inmate following his arrest in Columbus yesterday in connection with a burglary.

The warrant will be sent to Columbus authorities and will be served on the prisoner in the event he is not convicted on the burglary charge, Glattke said.

Fingerprint records which were received by the superintendent identified the youth as Woodrow Herbert, Franklin county, who escaped from the Grafton honor camp on Aug. 25. Committed May 2, 1938, he was serving a one to 15 year term for burglary and larceny.

Herbert was picked up by Columbus police yesterday while they were investigating a burglary complaint, dispatches said.

Meanwhile Glattke said five trusties who fled from the institution Tuesday were still at large. They include four who escaped while doing repair work on the administration building and a fifth who walked away from the orchard.

Politics Revived as Party Leaders Gather

Up and Down THE STREET

Just one fish was all the Lumbermens Insurance company gun club needed for its fish fry the other night. But that fish was a 20-pound northern pike caught by Danner Dalton, a member of the club, on a recent vacation trip in Canada. While Dalton was the hero of the club's party, he had to take a lot of "ribbing" from his associates, because he called on two companions to help him land the big one.

When Probate Judge C. J. Anderson went to northern Michigan recently to "get away from it all," he got more peace and quiet than he figured on. Up in the iron country of the Michigan peninsula, the radio in his car went dead because of the ore deposits in the earth, and with no newspapers available, he and his family were virtually cut off from the rest of the world.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates today was trying to find a way to "work his way through college." He has been invited by Head G-Man J. Edgar Hoover to attend a one-week re-training school in scientific crime detection at the National Police academy in Washington. He has been informed by city officials that the city can't pay tuition fees for officers to such things. The school opens Sept. 24 and Bates says he'll be there if he has to "pass the hat." The chief attended a re-training session last summer and several years previous took a full course in crime detection at the FBI school.

Robert B. Gordon, 555 Crescent road, is willing to concede now that you can't mark the spot where the fish are biting well. On a recent excursion to an Indiana lake, Gordon had a lot of luck landing blue gills, and decided to mark the spot. He fastened an improvised buoy to the seaweed near the surface, and the next day rowed out to find the buoy—after rowing for four hours, he decided that probably the buoy had broken away from its moorings. Anyway, he never found it.

HARDY RENAMED TO COURT STAFF

G. O. P. Chairman Returns to Probate Office to Succeed Clark as Chief Deputy.

Ralph M. Hardy, chairman of the Richland county Republican executive committee, has been apponted chief deputy in the county probate court, succeeding Raymond E. Clark, Probate Judge C. J. Anderson announced today.

Hardy formerly was a deputy under Judge Anderson, but resigned last February to become claims adjuster for the Ashland division of the state highway department. He will take over his post here Saturday, Judge Anderson said.

Clark, who has been chief deputy in the county court since Judge Anderson came into office six years ago, resigned to become chairman of the board and factory manager of the Perfection Bed Spring company, Mansfield. He will also take over his new duties Saturday.

It was understood that the job left vacant in the highway department by Hardy's resignation will not be filled immediately. He was named to the post following the appointment of Murray D. Shaffer as division engineer at Ashland.

Hardy has maintained his residence in Mansfield although he made his headquarters in Ashland while he was with the highway department.

DEATH CLAIMS SECOND EX-CHIEF IN 5 DAYS AS J. J. FEENEY DIES

Death today claimed the second former Mansfield chief of police within a week when James J. Feeney, 70, of 220 South Mulberry street, died at his home after a lingering illness.

H. E. McClure, Mr. Feeney's successor as head of the police department, died last Saturday.

Mr. Feeney joined the department May 7, 1901, and served for 17 years. He was appointed a lieutenant Jan. 1, 1904, and held this position on the force when Mr. McClure joined the department as a patrolman in 1905.

JAMES J. FEENEY

He received his captaincy badge Feb. 1, 1908, and Nov. 3 of the next year was appointed police chief, the position he held until his resignation, June 30, 1918, when he was succeeded by Mr. McClure.

Following his resignation, Mr. Feeney became associated with the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company in the personnel department and remained there until 12 years ago when he was named teacher and record clerk at the Ohio State reformatory.

Illness forced him to relinquish his duties at the reformatory early this year.

A resident of Mansfield 39 years, Mr. Feeney was born near Clyde, June 17, 1869.

He was a member of the St. Peter's Catholic church and an honorary member of the Knights of Columbus and Mansfield lodge, B. P. O. E.

Surviving are his wife, Mary; two sons, John D. Feeney of Deowners Grove, Ill., and John A. King of Springfield, Ill.; two daughters, Mrs. Curtis Beachum of East Lansing, Mich., and Mrs. F. J. Kelley of Mansfield, and nine grandchildren survive.

Funeral services will be held at the St. Peter's church at 9:30 a. m. Saturday with Msgr. R. C. Goebel officiating. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery, near Clyde. The body will be at the Geiger funeral home until the time of services.

RETAINS CAMP

CCC to Operate Mohican Park Unit for 6 More Months.

The Civilian Conservation corps camp in Mohican State park near Loudonville will be operated at least until next April 1, CCC Director Robert Fechner announced today.

The camp, one of the larger ones in Ohio, is one of the five in the state which are located in state forests. The others are in Scioto, Hocking, Ross and Vinton counties.

Residents of the Loudonville area won a new lease for the camp last year after it was announced that it would be closed. So many protests went to Washington that the time limit was extended, and today's extension adds another six months to the camp's life.

A soil erosion camp near Elyria in Lorain county was ordered closed by Fechner, leaving 29 in the state. A maximum of 5,800 young men and war veterans will be enrolled in the camps.

DIES AT AGE 79

W. A. Harbeson Was Official of Old Aultman-Taylor Firm.

Willis A. Harbeson, 79, of 177 Park avenue west, former assistant secretary-treasurer of the old Aultman-Taylor company, died at his home yesterday afternoon after a lingering illness.

Mr. Harbeson was born in Lebanon, Pa., Jan. 23, 1860, and came to this city with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harbeson, when he was 10 years of age. He was connected with the Aultman-Taylor company for 45 years.

A charter member of the Mansfield lodge, B. P. O. E., No. 56, Mr. Harbeson held the office of tyler at the time of his death. He also was a charter member of the St. Luke's Lutheran church and was a member of Masonic lodges.

His wife, Ida; two sons, Walter of Columbus and Robert of New Brunswick, N. J.; a brother, Harry of Mansfield; a sister, Mrs. E. L. Livensparger of Mansfield, and two grandsons survive.

G. O. P. TO DINE TONIGHT, DEMS CONFER FRIDAY

Strategy for Fall Campaign to Be Outlined as Candidates and Workers Meet.

Politics came back into the limelight in Mansfield today as the "strategy" boards of both the Richland county Democratic and Republican parties prepared to meet to outline plans for their fall campaigns for municipal and rural offices.

Tonight the G. O. P. chiefs and party workers will hold an organization dinner at 6:30 p. m. at the First Methodist church while Democratic candidates will meet with their executive committee chairman tomorrow night to map their campaign.

While neither meeting is scheduled as a "campaign opener," it is expected that the stage will be set during these sessions for the fall drive for Mansfield and village offices.

Ralph Hardy, Republican executive committee chairman will preside at the dinner meeting tonight.

William J. Locke, Republican candidate for mayor, and the 13 other G. O. P. candidates for municipal offices in November, will be introduced at the dinner session.

Meet at Mayor's Office.

Democratic candidates for municipal offices have been called together by executive committee Chairman John C. O'Donnell for a meeting tomorrow night in the office of Mayor Claude M. Hunter.

The Democratic plans will center on the campaign of Mayor Hunter for re-election for a second term.

In another major city race, Paul L. Kelley, Democrat, seeking his eighth term as auditor, will be opposed by Herbert L. Rinehart, a Republican newcomer in politics.

M. D. Ward, Democrat, present city solicitor, will be opposed by Atty. Lydon Beam, the G. O. P. nominee, for that past. Glenn A. Davidson, Democrat, and will G. Herrold, Republican, are the treasurer candidates. W. C. Mansfield, Republican, will oppose Howard G. Miller, Democrat, for council president.

LARDERS FILLED

U. S. Sees Supplies of Food Products Ahead of '36-'37.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Uncle Sam surveyed his larder today and reported indications that supplies of most food products were substantially above those of recent years.

An agriculture department inventory showed more plentiful supplies of these products were indicated than in 1936-37 and the average year during the 1925-29 period.

At the same time, Secretary Wallace indicated that the administration would not be displeased with a 20 per cent increase in farm prices, provided the rise was caused by "sound consumer demand" and not "speculative activity."

Wallace announced yesterday that no farmer referendum would be conducted on the question of imposing marketing quotas on corn.

DUKE AT PALACE

Windsor Calls at Buckingham Two Days After Arrival.

LONDON—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor arrived at Buckingham palace today.

The Duke, who returned to England two days ago after nearly three years of self-imposed exile, came to London from Colman's Hatch, Sussex, where with his Duchess he is the temporary guest of Maj. Edward Dudley Metcalf, an old friend and former equerry.

Flames Sweeping Part Of Historic Coney Island Park

NEW YORK—(AP)—A raging fire swept today along the boardwalk through Steeplechase park, oldest amusement area of historic Coney Island.

The first alarm was sounded at 1:30 p. m. (EST) and four more alarms were sounded within the next quarter hour.

Firemen said the flames started near the boardwalk entrance to the park which covers a square block of the resort. Virtually all of the structures are wood, and wooden buildings are scattered throughout the adjacent areas.

The last big fire in Coney Island, a dozen years ago, destroyed a big section of the boardwalk.

Fireboats were dispatched from the Battery, at the foot of Manhattan, some dozen miles from the scene.

SAN DIEGO—(INS)—Fourteen U. S. Navy bombing patrol planes were believed nearing the halfway point early today on a 2500-mile hop from San Diego to Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. The planes took off from San Diego Bay late yesterday, manned by 98 officers and men.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Glimpse of Far-Distant Past Offered By Pegler as a Refreshing Change

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—The Lamar Democrat of Lamar, Mo., edited by Arthur Aull, reports the death there recently of Miss Josephine Norris, age 86, at her apartment in the Opera block. Mr. Aull writes that she was born at Tuffet Plain, O., in 1843 and migrated to Golden Grove, Mo., near Lamar, with her parents when she was 3 years old. Her father, the late Col. David Norris, was the first representative in the Missouri legislature of Barton county and held other positions of distinction and public trust until he was assassinated in August, 1874, after some boundary trouble with Francis Hieronymous, a neighbor.

Colonel Norris was shot in the back as he rode along with a bucket of salt to salt his cattle on the disputed range.

The account of the outrage published in the Lamar Democrat at the time said: "The victim of the most cowardly and atrocious murder that has ever disgraced our country breathed his last from the effects of a pistol shot supposed to have been fired by Hieronymous or William Dixon, who seems to have hung around the Hieronymous premises. The coroner's inquest resulted in a verdict against Hieronymous and Dixon.

"The latter had fled and for some time could not be found, but Hieronymous protested his innocence and declared Dixon was the guilty party. While his examination proceeded before Squire Bowman, Dixon was arrested in a straw stack near Ash Grove. Dixon directly implicated Hieronymous."

"At the time this tragedy darkened her life," Mr. Aull writes, "Josephine Norris was the belle of the countryside. She was 21. She had a dashing and most gallant lover, Jim Ward, brother of the late Judge E. B. Ward. Jim had made a gallant record in General Jo Shelby's cavalry during the four long bloody years of the Civil war, and when the conflict ended was one of the daredevil troopers who followed their leader to Mexico to take service under the Emperor Maximilian. As the curtain dropped on Maximilian's rule it is declared that Jim was one of the faithful guards who got the Empress Carlotta out of Mexico."

Mr. Aull writes that when Jim Ward came back from Mexico he fell in love with the beautiful and high-spirited Josephine Norris, but could never quite bring himself to settle down in the sober ways of peace and be a family man. So, while he loved Josephine and she undoubtedly loved him, they didn't marry. Jim died a bachelor at Mena, Ark., in 1897.

Hieronymous, the neighbor, did not live to stand trial for the assassination of the honored and respected Col. Norris, being shot dead by a person unknown as he sat by the east window of the old jail, torn down only last year.

Dixon, however, was tried and acquitted, but his counsel, the late Colonel George H. Wasler, who founded the nearby town of Liberal, Mo., realized that Dixon must get away quickly, so he took him in his buggy and drove two days to Arkansas to turn him loose. But two days later Dixon was shot dead in a schoolhouse where he evidently was hiding.

For 32 years thereafter the beautiful Miss Josie cared for her mother, who died in 1906 at the age of 90. Miss Josie, who was a great reader, wrote a good many articles on controversial and philosophic subjects, including religion, and Mr. Aull says she retained friends and admirers ever during the final lonely years of old age.

At her funeral services in the River chapel there was no minister or anyone to deliver a eulogy, because "she had her own ideas of things" and was not religiously inclined, but the Milford and Lamar Rebeccas joined in conducting "their dignified and fitting ceremonial for the dead."

"Mrs. Helen Selvey, Lamar's sweet singer and generous helper at funeral services, sang 'Evening Brings Us Home'," Mr. Aull reports, with Mrs. Dimple Moore Haddock at the piano.

"The war's doing things to prices," says an item. "Hogs jumped a cent Tuesday. . . . The machinist at Logue's is declared to have received a telegram to go to work on munitions at Rock Island at $11.20 a day."

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Those warlike headlines have had one amusing effect: probably for the first time in Hollywood history, actors with phony British accents are learning to talk American again—and fast!

Paramount came rather close to re-making "The Volga Boatman," a DeMille hit of 1926, and the reason it didn't is an interesting commentary on these changing times. . . . Story editor remembered the click, suggested it to DeMille, who was eager and hurray-ish. . . . "Better take a look at it first, though," counseled CB. And the story editor, who was then Jeff Lazarus, took a look and groaned. "The Volga Boatman," innocuous as it was 13 years ago, if shown today would be interpreted as a plea for—hush, hush!—Communism!

"Lovely Lupe Velez," lovely Lupe's press agent writes me, "has a hobby hardly in keeping with her usual screen characterization. For the last ten years she has been collecting valuable sets of China."

Nice, nice. But what a hobby for a lovely little lady who admits she throws things!

Warner Bros. announces Edward ward G. Robinson in "The Life of Tony Pastor," the vaudeville impresario—and without permission of Darryl Zanuck, who we all thought had a copyright on the Lillian Russell period. . . . Richard Barthelmess, a click in "Only Angels Have Wings," is just getting around to another role. . . . He's a boy who can really pick and choose.

The other night the arclights were out, the mobs of sightseers gathered, and the cops were on duty around a boulevard theater—just another movie "premiere." To one officer up stepped a little old lady with the inquiry as to what it was all about.

"It's a movie, lady," he explained.

"Yes—but why all the fuss?"

The cop thought that one over, fumbling. "Why, er, why—why, lady, this is HOLLYWOOD!" was the best he could do.

The little old lady wandered away, apparently still perplexed. She must be, we decided, a normal person . . . and we hope she got back to her home town safely.

The ways of the newspaper reporter (as pictured on the screen) continue to amaze. . . . There's the gem in "The Star Maker," for the latest horrible example. . . . Here's Bing Crosby as a show producer, capitalizing on child talent, which is so devastatingly new an idea that the New York press converges practically in a body to be "granted" an interview. . . . Notebooks in hand, pencils wagging, the three reporters ask questions with awe, listen goggle-eyed, depart excitedly (just as if they'd learned what Hitler would do next) and gush their thanks with "That's great stuff, Mr. Earl."

Great stuff, eh? I'd like to see any of them write a yarn on the two or three banal lines that "Mr. Earl" gave them. I'm afraid, too, that real, less reverent reporters would dismiss that "great stuff" with a calm, decided "Nuts! Give us a line we can use, will ya? What do you think those brats you're showing off will amount to when they grow up?"

KEEP STOCKING COLOR

longer with this new hard-water suds that contains no fading alkali.

Now see stockings keep their delicate sheerness and fresh color, amazingly longer! See woolens and underwear regain bride-like freshness and color! Colored prints sing with radiant sparkle! Results are startling because science has found a way to make a wonderful new suds, called Vel. Contains no alkali to fade colors. Neither can Vel form ruinous soap-scum, even in hardest water. You can feel this slippery, slimy scum in soap suds. But these amazing new Vel suds feel soft and pure. That's because Vel is not a soap. It's a special new hard-water suds perfected by Colgate. It makes as much as 5 times more suds than expensive soap flakes in hardest water. And it makes hardest water act soft as rainwater. You can see why Vel is better than soap flakes for fine fabrics, because Vel does not form a ring of soap-scum around the bowl. That proves Vel can't leave ruinous soap-scum in your stockings, underwear and woolens, to dull the sheerness and cause a "cottony" look.

The most thrilling proof is the radiant freshness, the soft newness, and lovelier color of ANYTHING you wash in Vel. So easy on hands, too, because Vel suds contain no acid, no alkali to irritate the skin. Buy Vel today at grocers. Made and guaranteed by Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company.

CHAPTER IV.

Wilkins the butler and Rosie the waitress were completely bowled over, though nobody knew this. But their few words on the situation, as they went back and forth to the pantries, so roused Hetty that she marched in to see for herself.

Cornelia saw her come in, and took the situation in hand.

"This is our Hetty," she said, "our major domo, Miss Verne. If you want for anything while you are here, and I refuse to give it to you, just call on Hetty and you will get it."

Cornelia's smile gave Yvette her cue, and she held out a hand to Hetty, with a pretty word of appreciation, then turned back to Craig.

Hetty made for the kitchen, and found Mrs. Quinn, the cook.

"Land o' Goshen!" Hetty breathed, in a scared whisper. "She's got 'em all hypnotized! They're grovellin' at her feet, and she's quite at home, thank you, fingerin' of her cocktail glass."

"Forward piece?" said Mrs. Quinn.

Hetty gave her a look of mingled pity and scorn.

"A heap you do know, don't you? That young lady is as much quality as any Madison who ever breathed! A king would be proud to shake hands with her, and—" Hetty paused, with the intention of making Mrs. Quinn faint and fall to the floor,— "and, she shook hands with me!"

"She never!"

"She did!"

"Well, I'll be blowed!"

And Miss Cornella Madison was experiencing a similar apprehension that she would be blowed—though not in those words—as she quite understandingly watched her brother fall in love with Yvette Verne.

Mrs Hetty Garson, housekeeper in ordinary at Silver Hill, was the wife of Elkanah, a man of illimitable ability. He was a modified valet to Harley Madison, and looked after the boys a bit, and attended to civil wars among the servants, and was so trustworthy that he was called steward; and he was a good one.

He was Miss Cornelia's right-hand man, and was afraid of nobody on God's green earth, with the single exception of his wife, Hetty. Her opinion of him may be summed up in the phrase she used to describe him: "That worthless Elk! He's such a blessin'!"

Elkanah was long and lank, with a wiry strength and a great power of endurance. His eyes were keen and shrewd, his understanding quick and his response even quicker. His homely face seemed to show a high grade of intelligence, but the trouble with Elk was he seldom fulfilled that promise. He was sure of his facts, sure of his memories, sound in his logic but he had little intuition and no imagination.

However, Hetty had enough of these things for both, and with her guidance the pair achieved wonders.

By Saturday noon, the day following Yvette's arrival, Hetty had sized up the visitor and was giving Elkanah the net result.

"She's fine," Hetty declared, "and she's deep. Mr. Craig is mad about her, and Mr. Madison is nigh off his head, too."

"Sho', Hetty. Not Mr. Harley Madison!"

"That's what I said. But he ain't fell yet; he's hoverin' on the brink. It's up to her. If she wants him she can easy get him. But I doubt she wants him. He's rich, to be sure, but she's likely got a hundred wealthy sooters, maybe dooks and earls and such, like as not."

"Mr. Madison's a good catch, though. But what would Miss Cornelia say to such a mad marriage?"

"Well you know Miss Cornelia thinks everything and anything her brother does is perfect.

"'Blest be-ee the ti-i-i that binds Our hear-arts in Chris-istian love—' "

It was Hetty's habit to break into a hymn, even during her own conversations.

"But," she went on, "I know who would be mad and she'd raise the devil's own row, and that's Mrs. Boyce. She's always expected to have Harley Madison before she dies as much as she expects to have heaven after."

"If he marries her, he won't have much heaven before he dies, whatever he gets after. But our Mr. Madison isn't thinking about marryin' or givin' in marriage. He's all roiled up with his fancy town buildin' and improvin'. He only looks at this stage girl like a picture, you know. Besides, she is Mr. Craig's girl, if she's anybody's. Mr. Harley ain't a snitcher."

The pair were sitting in the steward's pantry, and to them appeared Miss Cornelia, with lists in her hand. Miss Cornelia was great on lists and woe befell any one who omitted an item meant for his attention.

"We're having a picnic this afternoon," the lady told them. "I've seen Wilkins about the food, and I want you two to take the thing in charge. The two big cars will hold us all, and we shall go to Felton Falls for the supper. Have an eye to everything, Elkanah, for though we pretend it is an old-fashioned picnic, I want it to be both comfortable and beautiful. Elkanah, look after the cocktails and champagne, and see to the hot coffee and tea bottles. Take the station car as usual. Wilkins will need your help. And Hetty, have simple but very nice china and napery. It is a pleasant thought to me that I can entrust it all to you two, knowing that it will be the same as if I had done it all myself."

Cornelia had been relieved of her sudden fear that her brother would make a fool of himself over Yvette. When, a short time ago, Harley had asked her to go for a drive with him in the afternoon, Yvette said, "Oh, let's make it a picnic and all go."

Wherefore Cornelia had taken hope that even if Harley was deeply interested in the girl she was not leading him on.

Harley Madison directed the guests to their seats in the cars, and when they started off, Yvette discovered herself on the back seat between Laura Lee and Craig Madison, with Everett Ames and Gifford Hale facing her. The October sunlight made the autumn leaves gay, the breeze was not too strong and the roads were fine.

"I do love a motor ride," Yvette said, "when all the conditions are right—the weather, the car, the people, all just as they are now. Can't we drive through the village? I want to see the improvements Mr. Madison is making."

"Oh, they're not started yet," Craig told her, and Everett Ames added, "They may never be."

"Why not?"

"Oh, there are some differences of opinion among the directors, and if it gets much worse, Mr. Madison may withdraw from the syndicate, and what would his fellows do then, poor things?"

"Further developments this morning?" Craig inquired.

"Well, yes," Ames said. "There were one or two disgruntled letters in the mail, but I fancy Mr. Madison will know how to deal with them."

"I rather think so," Yvette said. "He strikes me as a man who can deal with whatever comes his way."

"He's really a wonder man," said Laura. "My husband has known him for years, and he says Mr. Madison is the most efficient person he has ever seen."

"I take after him," said Craig, wistfully, "but I don't get glory and honor as he does."

"You're too young." Yvette smiled at him. "When you're your uncle's age, you'll have the world at your feet."

"You're all the world to me, but I don't want you at my feet!"

Yvette laughed. "I'm all the world to so many people!" she said, looking regretful. "I don't believe I want any more world to conquer."

"Not a bit like Alexander, are you?" Gifford Hale said, gaily. "But if ever you do want one to try on, remember I'm a candidate."

"To try on!" Yvette smiled. "Do you imply a possibility of my ever failing?"

"It might be a change," Laura Lee put in. "Monotony is always uninteresting."

"Not always," Yvette said, looking more serious. "My life is so full, so varied, and so uncertain, I sometimes long for monotony."

"But can't you get it if you really want it?" Laura went on. "Can't you go off, no one knowing where, and bury yourself in your monotony, till you get tired of it?"

"But you must remember," Craig put in, "that you can't enjoy monotony unless you have already found happiness."

"But if I had found happiness I wouldn't want monotony!" Yvette exclaimed. "And this conversation is getting too psychological or something like that. Tell me about the picnic we are going to, Craig. Do we sit on the ground, and have butterflies in the butter and katydids in the cake?"

"This is a Wilkins picnic, not a Sunday-school one. You'll like it."

"I know I shall. Miss Cornelia has made it all pretty for me. She told me so. She is one lovely lady is Miss Cornelia."

"She's the salt of the earth," Laura said.

"I've know her all my life," Craig said, "and I echo your opinion."

"I wish somebody would praise me," Gifford Hale complained. "I get no bouquets and leis and things."

"You're a dear," Yvette told him, "but I don't know you well enough to sort out your good traits from your wicked ones."

"What makes you think I have any wicked ones?"

"You wouldn't be any good if you didn't."

"One up for you. While Wilkins is laying the cloth for the picnic, you and I will take a twilight stroll, and I will tell you my favorite crimes."

"Let us hope Wilkins is of slow motion, for I've promised a lot of twilight strolls. Didn't I say I'd wander a bit with you, Mr. Ames?"

"You certainly did, Miss Verne, and I shall hold you to your promise."

* * *

Soon they were at the picnic place. "Here we are!" cried Harley Madison. "On with the hampers, Garson; it is later than I thought. You all right, Miss Verne? Not too tired?"

"Not a bit. Come over here, Miss Cornelia, here's a big stone to sit on, and Garson has spread a robe over it for us."

The two sat down, while Garson prepared another rock for Anita and Laura Lee, and the men stood about or brought car cushions to sit on.

"You like your picnic, Yvette?" Cornelia asked, calling her guest by name for the first time.

"Oh, yes, Miss Madison, I love anything outdoorsy."

WASHINGTON A LA MARAT

SAN FRANCISCO—(U.P.)—Hollywood prides itself on not doing things like this. When "Andre Chenier," opera based on the French Revolution, was produced here, the property list called for a bust of Jean Paul Marat. There was none. In dismay the property man found a bust of George Washington, chiseled off his three-cornered hat, tied a revolutionary bandage about his brow and the opera went on.

Book of the Week

"JUGGERNAUT: THE PATH OF DICTATORSHIP," by Albert Carr; Viking: $3).

IT IS no good pretending that Albert Carr's "Juggernut: the Path of Dictatorship" arrives at any very original conclusions. There have been literally scores of books on the general subject Mr. Carr has spent his 531 pages upon. Nearly all end with a warning to the United States, after having shown how the course of history points to the danger of dictatorship, fascism, or what you will in this country.

So what one must look for is a different approach, and that Mr. Carr has, within certain limits. He begins by studying both the personalities and the methods of 20 men from the past. He has a first section wherein Richelieu, Louis XIV, Frederick the Great, Primo de Rivera and a trio: Alexander, Metaxas and Carol, are grouped as dynasts. A second general section considers Cromwell, Robespierre, Bolivar, Lenin and Stalin under the general heading "Revolutionaries" And then there follows a group known as "Crisismen" which includes the first and third Napoleons, Gomez, Ataturk, Salazar and, of course, Mussolini and Hitler.

Through exact example and careful deduction, Mr. Carr discovers what he feels to be the technique of dictatorship, its course, and its results. Not all of this is to be accepted without cavil — for example, many will disagree with his analysis of Stalin, particularly the part in which he sees Stalin pursuing a coldly planned course to the left, especially now that the Russian has his German coup.

And then Mr. Carr sums up. Our present situation, with high taxes, greatly increased authority in executive hands, an evident trend toward centralization of power, state governments in a curiously uncomfortable position, an increasingly paternalistic tone in special groups and classes (such as labor), all look disagreeably like conditions which obtained abroad just before the rise of certain dictators. We are being carried farther and farther from democracy, Mr. Carr insists, although there seems a reasonable chance of checking this movement. We must first, he says, recognize the dangers of "crisis-dictatorship," and next must direct our energies toward the defense of democracy. There then would be a chance that the United States could fulfill its democratic destiny.—J. S.

HEARING SET

Court of Appeals to Review Personal Tax Suit Oct. 5.

Hearing of a case which would mandamus the county auditor and treasurer to collect personal taxes alleged due on the F. B. Black estate had been set today for Oct. 5 before the Fifth district appeals court in Canton.

The hearing previously had been set for Sept. 21 in Richland county.

Filed by Michael Hallabrin of Mansfield as a taxpayer, the suit contends that personal tax returns on the Black estate were incomplete during the period from 1926 to 1932.

The court is asked to require County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe and Treasurer John E. Kolb to examine the tax records for that period, make findings against the Black estate and collect the back taxes and penalties that allegedly are due.

THIEF LIKES SHOE FIT

PASADENA, Cal. — (U.P.) — Mrs. Lena Ramos has reasons to think that her shoes are a perfect fit for someone. A year ago, a pair was stolen from her house. Recently, the pair, badly worn and dyed in the meantime, were returned and left on the porch and a new pair stolen.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

For older boys and their fathers who are interested in handicraft, the Mansfield public library has recently added two new books of that nature. They will serve to feed hobby horses and they contain much information useful to Boy Scouts.

WOODCRAFT, by Bernard S. Mason — This book especially seems to be valuable to scouts and other campers. One section of the book deals with campcraft, one with woodcraft, and one with crafts such as the Indians practiced. This last section contains much information useful to teachers of Indian projects.

TIN-CAN-CRAFT, by Edwin T. Hamilton—In this book a popular hobby is made even more interesting. It includes a great deal of information about the relative usefulness of the tin cans sold with trade-name products. Detailed plans of producers for making all types of decorative and practical tin objects are shown and complete catalog information is given for the various tools which are needed most.
